Near-Zero Temperatures Chill
Soldiers, Some In Summer Uniforms

SEOUL (AP)—A frozen silence settled today over Korean battlefields. Temperatures of 6 above zero virtually paralyzed the northwestern front, where an estimated 90,000 Chinese Communists faced the concentrated U.S. 1st Corps. It was even colder in the northeast.

Russian Jets Shoot Up Two U.S. Superforts

5th AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea (UP)—Russian-built jet fighters damaged two B-29 Superfortresses so severely in a wild air battle over the Manchurian frontier today that the bombers crashed-landed with their wounded crews at Kimpo airfield near Seoul.

One of the Japan-based B-29s, whose pilot had been hit in the leg by a 20-millimetre shell, slid off the runway and destroyed four parked allied aircraft. The other landed safely although it had several wounded aboard and suffered heavy battle damage.

The two Superfortresses were among 18 which dumped 140 tons of demolition bombs on the two double-tracked railway bridges across the Yalu River frontier at Sinuiju, in the northwest corner of Korea.

Six Russian-built MIG-15 jets pounced on the B-29s as they made their bomb runs through intense anti-aircraft fire from batteries on the Chinese side of the river.

Escorting American F-80 shooting Star jet fighters roared into the fight. For a short time, the sky seemed full of twisting planes, bursting shells and bullets.

GOVT. BARRED T.W.A. PLANE

PARIS (Reuter)—The Canadian pilgrims who died Monday night in a plane crash in the Alps were originally to have flown home in a Trans-World Airlines plane rather than the private charter plane which crashed, a tourist agency spokesman said today.

Roger Guillevin, of the French tourist agency which arranged the pilgrimage, said the Canadian government would not allow them to use the T.W.A. plane.

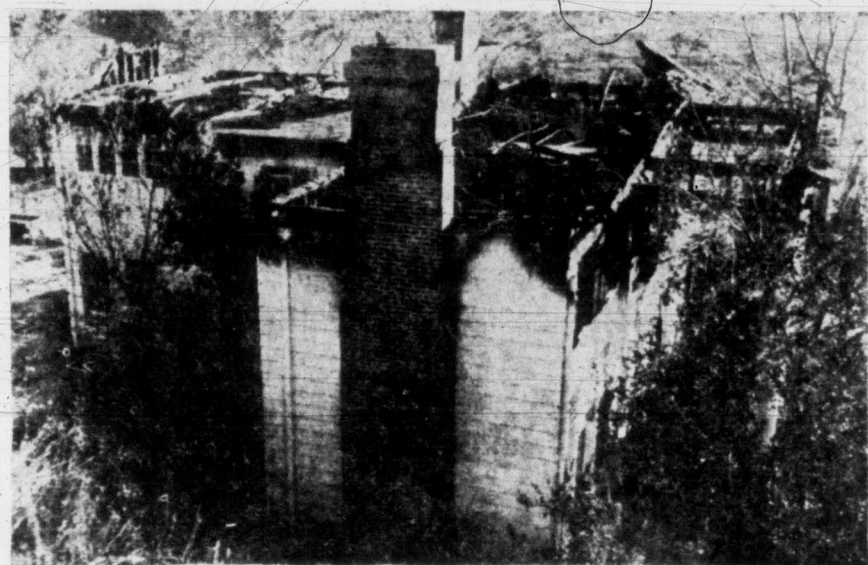

The crashed plane belonged to the Curtiss-Reid Air Services Ltd.

Road Blocks Failure In Search For Hit-Run Car

"No success," was the report of city police on duty at road blocks, established at strategic points throughout the city Monday evening, in an attempt to locate the hit and run car which struck and killed 80-year-old William Savidge Friday night.

Savidge died in hospital an hour and a half after being hit in the 3000 block of Douglas Street.

The barriers were set up at the scene of the accident, on Cook, Quadra, Gorge, Burnside, Tillamook and Gorge.

Police have pieces of glass from a broken headlight at the scene of the accident. They also found some pieces at the foot of Alder Street. A witness to the accident had followed the car that far.

Police are continuing their appeal to citizens who might have any information connected with the accident to contact them.

"No matter how trivial the information might be, it is possible it may be the added link needed to solve the case," said Sgt. Brooke Douglas, head of the traffic section.

Abandon Hope For Missing Men In Plane

Possibility that three young Vancouver men missing since Saturday on a flight from Patricia Bay to Sea Island were alive all but disappeared today.

The air force has called off the search, but the R.C.M.P. launch from Ganges is still checking the Gulf Islands and Georgia Gulf area.

Log book of the missing plane, a Piper Cub Clipper, was found washed up on the shore of Curlew Island, off the east side of Mayne Island. This indicates the cream-colored Vancouver Aero Club plane crashed into the sea and its occupants were drowned.

They were Dan M. Kohaluk and Lloyd Miller, both of Vancouver, and Donald Lesperance of New Westminster.

Kohaluk, the pilot, only learned to fly during the summer and was inexperienced. He took off from Patricia Bay in rain, and weather conditions at Vancouver were poor.

Shipyards Reject Offer; New Meetings

There may be new developments in the current dispute between shipyard workers and the two Victoria shipbuilding companies Wednesday or Thursday.

Monday night, representatives of the eight unions concerned met with officials from Victoria Machinery Depot and Yarrow. Limited to consider a new settlement proposal. The company representatives offered the workers a wage increase of 13 cents an hour.

The offer was rejected.

The 13-cent pay settlement was offered first to the Boilermakers' Union and then to the Victoria Joint Shipyard Council. The council is bargaining on behalf of seven of the smaller unions.

The offer was made on the condition it be implemented only if all eight unions accepted.

Following rejection by the boilermakers, the Joint Shipyard Workers' Council claimed it could not consider the offer at all. Council members suggested further meetings to be held with the company officials with boiler-maker and council representatives present at the same time.

Pope Prays For Victims Of Disaster

Cardinal McGuigan
Expresses Grief

VATICAN CITY (CP)—

Pope Pius today offered special prayers at a mass in his private chapel for the 58 persons on a Canadian plane which crashed Tuesday night in the French Alps.

Most of the 51 passengers on the chartered four-engined aircraft were Canadian Holy Year pilgrims on the first leg of their homeward flight from Rome.

The Pope, informed at midnight of the disaster, immediately dismissed church officials who were with him. With tears streaming down his cheeks, he went to his private chapel to pray for the victims.

James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, who is due to return to Canada by air Thursday, expressed profound grief.

The cardinal said he would say mass again today for the repose of the souls of the crash victims. "I know they left Rome purified and spiritualized by the religious exercises of the Holy Year."

The cardinal said his sympathies went out "in a very intimate way to the families of all those on board."

FLY TO SCENE

In Rome today, Canadian Ambassador Jean Desy and a group of Roman Catholic prelates and officials prepared to fly by special plane to Grenoble.

The ambassador was to be accompanied by Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec, Archbishop Paul-Emile Leger of Montreal, and two Quebec cabinet ministers, Onesime Gagnon and Camille Pouliot.

The pilgrims were received by the Pope Monday before their departure. More than 1,000 persons pressed into the Clementine Hall of the Vatican Palace, where the Pope smilingly walked among them, extending his hand to be kissed.

HONORED BY GOVERNOR

Medals Pinned On Scouts For Bravery

OTTAWA (CP)—A 10-year-old wolf cub, Wayne Bailey of Island Falls, Sask., today received the Silver Cross, scouting's second highest award for gallantry, at an investiture at Government House.

Viscount Alexander, Chief Scout for Canada, also decorated four scouts with the same medal. There were no winners this year of the Bronze Cross, highest possible award for gallantry.

Young Bailey, a member of the Island Falls Pack, won the decoration for his attempt to rescue a girl from drowning in a creek near Island Falls.

A 12-year-old scout, Walter Olney of Silver Lake, Alta., also won the blue-ribbed award for rescuing another boy in danger of drowning in the lesser slave river.

John Alex Coubrough, 12, of Brantford, Ont., was another Silver Cross winner, for rescuing a small boy and girl who had fallen through the ice of the Grand River.

58 Bodies, Including 13 Priests, Are Found

GRENOBLE, France (CP)—An Alpine rescue party which climbed some 8,000 feet up Mont l'Obiou to the wrecked airliner, "Canadian Pilgrim" found no survivors among the 58 persons aboard, it was announced officially tonight.

A terse radio message received from the party battling rain and sleet on the Alpine peak said: "No survivors."

Rescue operations were then called off for the day in the face of worsening weather conditions.

BITS OF PAPER FOUND ON SLOPE

GRENOBLE, France (CP)—

As searchers toiled up the mountainside toward the wreck of the chartered Canadian plane in which 58 lost their lives, they found scraps of paper — pictures of the Pope and the Vatican, and torn passport forms.

One of the scraps of paper was a page from a diary written in French—most of the victims were French-Canadians. It said:

"It now is 1445 hours (2:45 p.m.), we just flew over the Isle of Elba (in the Mediterranean), and we are still entranced by the magnificent ceremonies we saw in Rome. We sang the Ave Maria."

Que. Churches Burn Candles For The Dead

MONTREAL (CP)—Candles

burned today in scores of Quebec churches, in big cities and tiny villages, as anxious relatives and friends said prayers for Roman Catholic pilgrims from the province who were aboard the Canadian airliner which crashed in the French Alps Monday.

Throughout the province there was a sense of shock as details piled up concerning what may prove to be the worst air crash involving Canadians in history.

Most of the passengers came from Quebec City or neighboring towns and villages.

The pilgrims came from such little villages as St. Gregoire de Montmorency and St. Philippe de Neri, and from big cities like Quebec and Montreal.

Roman Catholic Church dignitaries and congregations throughout the province expressed shock at the reports of the crash, and special prayers and masses were planned throughout the province.

Weather Forecast

Cloudy today; variable loudness overnight and cloudy Wednesday. Continuing cold. Winds southwest 25 m.p.h. decreasing to southwest 15 m.p.h. overnight. Low tonight 32, high Wednesday 42.

The big plane, carrying French-Canadian Holy Year pilgrims home from Rome, crashed into the side of the French Alps mountain in a blinding snowstorm last night. It was the first disaster involving Holy Year pilgrims.

The Canadian plane, christened "The Canadian Pilgrim" when it was blessed in Montreal last spring, had safely made 30 chartered round trips between Rome and Montreal.

The wreckage was about 85 miles from the spot where an Indian Constellation crashed less than two weeks ago with 48 East Indian seamen and crew. None of the bodies of the 48 lost in the Constellation crash has been removed because of the hazardous terrain.

In the case of the Canadian airliner, guides expressed belief the bodies could be brought down to the valley.

The wreckage was sighted at about the 7,000-foot level, 1,500 feet from the peak.

The plane's passengers, who included an Italian Roman Catholic priest on his way to take up an appointment in Ottawa and an American traveler, had joined 1,200 Canadians in an audience with the Pope only a few hours before yesterday's take-off from Clampino airport in Rome.

Rescue workers said the plane bounced off a rocky shoulder of the mountain and splattered into the forest below, scattering debris as it fell.

EN ROUTE TO MONTREAL

The plane was on its way to Montreal from Rome via Paris when it struck. It was carrying 13 Roman Catholic priests, 12 of them Canadians. Nearly all of the 38 laymen among the passengers were from Quebec Province.

Ranking clergymen above the plane was Msgr. J. Alderville, Bureau, former dean of the faculty of canonical law at Laval University, Quebec.

Another prominent Quebec citizen listed was Ulysse Demers, professor of pharmacy at Laval.

The pilot was listed as Orville Alfred Ohmstead, 28, of Montreal. His co-pilot was Robert James Henderson of Willowdale, Ont.

Also listed on a manifest for the "Canadian Pilgrim" was Romano Mochiutti, described as a member of the Apostolic delegation at Ottawa. The Apostolic delegate himself, Msgr. Ildebrando Antonutti, was reported safe in Rome.

Also on the ship was Arthur Pelletier, 50, president of the Montmorency Falls, Que., textile workers' syndicate affiliated with the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor.

Onesime Gagnon, Quebec provincial treasurer, missed the flight when he arrived at the airport five minutes late. His cabinet colleague, Fisheries Minister Camille Pouliot, when awakened in his Rome hotel room, said: "My God, my God. I knew many of them on that plane."

Immediately word was flashed to Rome, Most Rev. Maurice Roy, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Quebec, left by special Italian military plane for Grenoble. He was accompanied by Col. A. Cherrier, military attaché of the Canadian embassy at Rome, and Pouliot.

Two of the passengers were a honeymoon couple, Ernest Timmons, 27, of Ste. Anne De La Pocatiere, Que., and his 26-year-old bride, the former Aline Michaud.

Gets Silver Cross
J. ALEX COUBROUGH

Two scouts from Nova Scotia, Gordon Dwyer Smith, 15, of New Glasgow, and John Gilbert Mac Donald of Canning, also were decorated with Silver Crosses for similar acts of gallantry.

Soldier, Not Sailor?

Mild surprise for Defence Minister Brooke Claxton came during tour of H.M.C.S. Naden today. Chatting with patient, he discovered man was in army—not navy. He was Sgt. Ken Christofferson of Aylesford, N.S., who was stationed at Work Point, but contracted T.B. of spine. Nursing sister standing by is Sub. Lt. Mary Pogson of Toronto and Victoria.

58 Perish As Canadian Pilgrim Plane Crashes

Tragedy Follows Blessing

By ADRIENNE FARRELL

VATICAN CITY (Reuter)—Less than three hours after kneeling before the Pope to receive his personal blessing yesterday, 49 Canadian pilgrims lay amid the wreckage of a crashed plane in the French Alps.

The pilgrims had persuaded the air charter company to delay the departure of their Paris-bound plane from 8 a.m. local time to 2 p.m., so that they could attend the special audience in the gleaming marble Clementine Palace.

They go their wish. There is a tragic ring now in the Pope's blessing to them, published today by the Vatican.

He said: "La Nouvelle France (the historic name for Quebec) has been truly privileged and favored by God in an exceptional manner."

After the audience the pilgrims took off from Rome. Less than three hours later their plane smashed into a mountain peak in the Alps. All 58 persons aboard were killed.

SPECIAL PRAYERS

The Pope today offered special prayers for the victims and ordered cables despatched to their families and to the government of Canada.

News of the disaster was kept from the Pope until this morning so as not to disturb his rest. At 75, he has been in frail health.

All the pilgrims aboard the ill-fated plane were in Rome for the beatification—the last stage before becoming a saint—of a pioneer Canadian nun, Mother Marguerite Bourgeoys.

The Pope told them Sunday at his private audience that "in coming to assist at the glorification of the blessed Marguerite, you have felt that you were repaying, in part at least, a debt of gratitude too great ever to be fully repaid."

"It is impossible to assess in all its value the fullness and efficacy of her role in spreading Catholicism in your beautiful country," the Pope said, speaking in French.

Msgr. Paul Emile Leger, Archbishop of Montreal, will say a requiem mass in St. Peter's tomorrow for the crash victims.

Crash Followed Delay For Plane

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian airplane which crashed in the French Alps with 58 persons aboard Monday had previous trouble on an earlier flight carrying pilgrims returning from Rome, two Roman Catholic clergy in Windsor said today.

Very Rev. John H. O'Loane, president of Assumption College, and Most Rev. C. L. Neilligan of the college staff said they were passengers on the same plane only a week ago, returning to Canada from a Holy Year pilgrimage to Rome.

Over the Rhone valley in southern France, one of the four engines went dead, and the DC-4 turned back to Marseilles, where it landed without incident, the two priests said.

The passengers—more than 50—were delayed 24 hours while the engine was repaired. The rest of the trip to Montreal was uneventful.

At Montreal, W. R. Oliver, general manager of Curtiss-Reid Air-tours, owners of the crashed plane, said trouble developed by the plane a week ago was a minor mechanical difficulty.

Mr. Rock, said Ricky's father had also been a member of the Drumheller Grain Club when he was a boy and the family had for years been intensely interested in producing top-quality seed grain.

The other world championship title awarded today went to John Eliuk of Hairy-Hill, Alta., for his exhibit of Victory oats. Mr. Eliuk also won the oats championship last year.

TIBETANS' STRUGGLE WITH CHINA REDS 'ALL OVER'

KALIMPONG, India (Reuter)—The struggle between the Tibetans and Chinese Communists advancing into Tibet is "all over," an India government spokesman said here today.

Communist China and Tibet have agreed on peace terms and fighting has ceased, the spokesman said, since "Lhasa and Peiping have been able to reach agreement over relations between Tibet and China."

A tentative agreement provides for Tibetan recognition of Chinese suzerainty, with China assuming responsibility for Tibet's external relations and communications, the spokesman added.

China will maintain a token force in Tibet, but will not interfere with the Dalai Lama and the Panchen Lama, the heads of Tibetan theocracy.

WOMAN KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

79-Year-Old Mrs. Mary Northam Dies In Hospital After Being Struck By Car

Hazardous driving conditions caused by the first touch of winter weather, brought death to an elderly woman and injuries to two other persons Monday.

Seventy-nine-year-old Mrs. Mary Northam, 2644 Rose Street, well-known figure at the public market where she operated a home-cooking stand for many years, died in hospital after being struck by a car.

City police traffic officers said Mrs. Northam was crossing Hillside Avenue from north to south at 5 when struck by a car driven by Robert R. Newton, 667 Ralph Street. He was traveling west on Hillside.

Police said she was crossing at or near the west line of the intersection.

Mrs. Northam died at Royal Jubilee Hospital at 6.30. She suffered a severe fracture of the skull and both legs were broken.

Police are seeking witnesses who saw the collision.

She was the second elderly person to be killed in traffic accidents in Victoria in four days. Police are still trying to locate the hit-and-run car which fatally injured 80-year-old William Savidge, 3008 Douglas Street, shortly after 5 Friday evening in the 3000 block of Douglas.

During an earlier sleet storm at Broad and Fort Street, Mrs. Susan McNeill, 2603 Douglas Street, suffered a head cut when struck by a car driven by Dorothy V. Lee, 1337 Rockland Avenue.

In the same hour at Broad and Johnson Street, James Morrison, 75, 751 Station Street, a passenger in a car suffered a severe cut on the bridge of the nose in a two-car collision.

SEATTLE (AP)—A frozen silence settled today over Korean battlefields.

Temperatures of 6 above zero virtually paralyzed the northwestern front, where an estimated 90,000 Chinese Communists faced the concentrated U.S. 1st Corps. It was even colder in the northeast.

Ice-tipped winds swept down from mountain peaks, on the quitted Chinese and on shivering Americans, many still in summer uniforms. The U.S. 8th Army was rushing Arctic clothing to the chilled troops.

Parka-clad marines pushed through frozen hills in the centre of the line toward Changjin reservoir and its great hydro-electric development.

Farther east, two regiments of the U.S. 7th Division marched along ice-caked roads in sub-zero weather toward the Manchurian border, 30 miles away.

Winds of 40 miles an hour made it difficult for fighting men of the 7th Division to breathe. Their hands and feet were numb by the cold.

A thermometer carried by a tiny wind-tossed plane above them registered 21 below zero.

AP Correspondent Tom Stone said an overcast all but hid the 17th Regiment and the 31st "Polar Bear" Regiment.

(Despite weather conditions, a UP dispatch said Russian-built jet fighters damaged two B-29 Superfortresses so severely in a wild air battle over the Manchurian frontier today that the bombers crash-landed with their wounded crews at Kimpo airfield near Seoul.)

Sleds and ox-carts carried heavy weapons and equipment through the mountain roads north of Pungsan.

French Alpine Party Finds No Survivors

GRENOBLE, France (CP)—An Alpine rescue party which climbed some 8,000 feet up Mont l'Oubou to the wrecked affirmer "Canadian Pilgrim" found no survivors among the 58 persons aboard. It was announced officially tonight.

A terse radio message received from the party battling rain and sleet on the Alpine peak said: "No survivors."

Rescue operations were then called off for the day in the face of worsening weather conditions.

He said this was done after tests had been made.

About 10 minutes later an explosion shattered the Leduc Hotel. Ten persons died in the blast and fire that followed.

"It is not the intention to make a complete statement until a report has been received from gas experts who are making an investigation," Mr. Simington said. "The investigators are Herbert R. Davis of Vermilion, Alta., and Julian Garrett of Edmonton."

The president said the gas was carried last Thursday from the absorption plant at Devon, Alta., to the "Y" where the connection with the nearby town of Calmar is located. This was done after all tests had been made.

Another prominent Quebec citizen listed was Ulysse Demers, professor of pharmacy at Laval. The pilot was listed as Orville Alfred Ohmstead, 28, of Montreal. His co-pilot was Robert James Henderson of Willowdale, Ont.

One aspect of the investigation is to determine the time it would take for the gas to go from the regulator station to the scene of the explosion, or to establish whether some other factor was responsible.

Meanwhile M. M. Cantor, provincial coroner, announced an inquest into the deaths would open in about two weeks. Identity of the tenth victim had not yet been established.

Investigators believe the dead man was an oil man, possibly a lease agent. Clothing on the body is of expensive make and it is believed the man may have been an American.

Woman Doctor In Kidnap Case Has Debt Trail

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Police are turning up a trail of unpaid bills, growing debts and threatened eviction in investigating recent activities of Dr. Nancy Campbell, charged with kidnapping a little girl last week-end.

Investigations are delving into two other matters, police said: 1. Evidence that the prominent 45-year-old woman physician had been "doling out money to a number of individuals."

2. Discovery of $800 in travelers' cheques found in her car which are part of $1,000 reported stolen earlier this year from the Santa Fe office of Dr. Eric E. Hausner.

Dr. Campbell is in hospital awaiting arraignment in a week or two. A $25,000 bond was posted for her Tuesday.

The popular doctor, dressed like a man, was arrested in Santa Fe Saturday night as she picked up a box containing $20,000 ransom. In her car nearby was blonde Linda Stamm, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Stamm. Aside from being drugged she was apparently none the worse after spending Friday night in a doorless, windowless shack in 9-degree weather.

'Might Consider It Purely Accident,' Coroner Hart Says At Inquest

A coroner's jury which sat today to investigate the hit-and-run traffic death last Friday of William Savidge, 3008 Douglas Street, held no one responsible for the fatality.

After deliberating just seven minutes, the six-man panel brought in a verdict of accidental death.

Coroner Dr. E. C. Hart had said there were three possible verdicts: Accidental death, culpable neglect or manslaughter.

"If the driver of the car had stopped and stayed at the scene and had been here today to tell his story," the coroner observed, "you might consider it purely an accident. The fact that he ran away might make you a little suspicious that there was something more to it than that."

The jury apparently made its decision on the basis Mr. Savidge was nearly 80; he was wearing dark clothing, and the roadway in front of him home where he was hit was poorly illuminated.

Actual evidence presented at the inquest was scant. No one was produced who saw the collision.

Harold Neff, 551 View Royal, who was working in a lumber yard near the accident scene, heard a crash.

"It was a metallic sound," the witness testified. "I thought at first a bicycle had been hit."

Constable Grant said there was a broken skid-mark about 78 feet in length on the roadway. The road, he said, was dry at the time and street illumination was poor.

Other witnesses called to give testimony were Dr. Keith Bryant, attending physician; May Moore, 845 Leslie Drive, a nurse who cared for Mr. Savidge at the scene of the accident; and Frederick Woodrow, 69 Lurline Avenue, nephew of the deceased.

TORONTO FAIR TRIUMPH

Boy, 13, Wins World Wheat Championship

TORONTO (CP)—Thirteen-year-old Ricky Sharpe of Munson, Alta., today won one of agriculture's most honored awards—the Royal Winter Fair's world wheat championship.

It is the first time in the history of the fair, founded in 1922, that a junior has won this championship.

Rickey, member of the Drumheller Junior Grain Club, last year won the junior wheat title and the reserve grand championship. The 1949 world wheat crown went to Mrs. Amy Kelsey of Erickson, B.C., who placed sixth this year.

The young champion was not at the fair, but officials sent a telegram asking him to appear here Saturday to receive the Canadian National Railways Trophy from Lord Digby, head of the Royal Agricultural Society of Britain.

P. J. Rock of Drumheller, livestock exhibitor here, said Ricky "has the size and bounce of a rabbit and is as sharp as a cricket." He grew his world champion sample of Thatcher wheat on a 3½-acre plot on his father's farm, eight miles from Drumheller.

Mr. Rock said Ricky's father had also been a member of the Drumheller Grain Club when he was a boy and the family had for years been intensely interested in producing top-quality seed grain.

The other world championship title awarded today went to John Eliuk of Hairy-Hill, Alta., for his exhibit of Victory oats. Mr. Eliuk also won the oats championship last year.

With the number of ships we got operating on this coast, the navy must have been a mile stretched to turn out that honor guard for Brooke Claxton.

That hit-and-run driver oughta been run down and hit.

Headline in the Times: "Snow in Vancouver." That's what I like about this town—jes' plumb modest.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

'POW-WOW' AND CHARMS

YESTERDAY I CITED some odd superstitions still current among a few of the older people of German descent in Lunenburg, N.S., and Waterloo County, Ont., as recorded by ethnologists of the National Museum, Ottawa. So it may not be surprising to learn that "charming" or "pow-wow," as it is called, is still practiced in some parts by Canadians of German and Pennsylvania Dutch origin.

These "charmers" will not attempt to cure a disease until the moon is on the wane, and never after sunrise or before sunset. Another peculiarity is that a woman charmer cannot teach the art to another woman, but only to a man. Which, of course, may merely be a variant of the old line about "How happy could I be with either, were I other dear charmer away."

GOOD CHURCH PEOPLE

IN CASE ANYONE should think these charmers are in league with the devil—as is sometimes alleged—the ethnologists point out that many of them are very religious and "good" church members. The charmers claim that the whole efficacy of their "pow-wow" lies in the invocation of the Holy Trinity and not in the personal virtues of the charmer.

In that connection I was amused to read that one of the Ontarians who claimed to cure by invoking the Trinity was anything but virtuous. He would "swear on the slightest provocation, was very often much the worse for liquor and was justly suspected of having a great partiality for his neighbors' smoked ham, which he often purloined at night!"

MORE MUMBO-JUMBO

AMONG THE MANY so-called "charms" listed in the two booklets is one that is alleged to cure gout, and has to be done at the increase of the moon. The charmer looks at the moon while rubbing the gout and three times repeating, in German, these words:

"What I see increase,
What I feel decrease,

In the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

But it won't work unless said three times without drawing one's breath and must be repeated, under the same conditions, on three consecutive nights. My readers of English origin may be interested to know that in Staffordshire it is an old custom to cure whooping cough by taking the child to see the new moon and rubbing its tummy, at the same time repeating the same incantation in English.

TOOTHACHE-CHARM

DENTISTS MIGHT be put out of business if more Canadians believed in the old Ontario cure for toothache. It calls for the sufferer to go to a spring on a neighbor's farm, before sunrise or after sunset, and take three mouthfuls of water—not using a cup but with the mouth—then spit it out on the ground. At the same time the sufferer must invoke the Trinity three times.

As this has to be done three nights in succession, and the charm will fail if the possessor of the aching molar speaks to anyone during the three performances, I can't help thinking that there might be an aching jaw from another cause if the said farmer neighbor caught you near his chicken house on the third night and didn't believe in charms.

POOR CHILD!

MY SYMPATHY is also with the child suffering from an infantile liver disorder or form of pleurisy and sent to a charmer to cure. For the "pow-wow" idea is to take the ailing kiddie, swing it in the direction of the cardinal points while the charmer invokes the Trinity. And as it was said to work best when done at a crossroads, I am wondering how many poor youngsters died of the "cure" rather than the ailment! Apropos of children, I wonder if the psychologists have ever tried out the idea that the best way to cure a child of bad temper is not for father to spank him, but for father to take off his pants—not to receive the switch on that part of the anatomy usually destined for it—but to pass the unruly one down through the left leg. According to the Amish idea in Waterloo County, that'll learn him!

Colorful Sidelights Given Of Chambers-Hiss Case

A behind-the-scenes picture of the Chambers-Hiss case "which confused and divided Americans" and which he likened to the Dreyfus case of past generations was given the First United Church Men's A.O.T.S. Club at a supper meeting Monday by Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Daily Times.

The speaker termed the case a tragedy in six acts, ranging from denunciation of State Department expert Alger Hiss by Whitaker Chambers before the House Un-American Activities Committee as a Communist—to the dramatic second trial in which Hiss was found guilty of perjury and sentenced to five years in prison.

The case is now under appeal. Mr. Keate, who worked on

Time magazine with Chambers, gave a detailed outline of the man and of Hiss—bringing in colorful sidelights not printed in accounts of the case.

CROSS-CURRENTS

Noting that 3,000,000 words were transcribed in the two trials, the newspaperman said the entire proceedings were lined with cross-currents and conflicts. "And the smear campaign aspect of it is still going on," he remarked.

Pipe-puffing Chambers, who renounced communism in 1937, was dubbed by Mr. Keate as "one of the most brilliant journalists in the U.S. today."

"He left a $30,000 a year, job with Time to expose Hiss and Communist activities," he continued.

Hiss was described as a handsome, "bright young American boy" who would have "won if it had been a trial based on their photographs."

The speaker told how a typewriter, some official documents which would have permitted a foreign power to crack the U.S. secret code, and the "pumpkin papers"—microfilm of secret documents, were chief "witnesses" for prosecuting attorney Tom Murphy.

The trials brought out the insidious range and scope of Communist activity in the United States and proved the effectiveness of the party methods of using any ruse, cunning, unlawful methods, evasion or concealment of truth, to gain their ends, Mr. Keate pointed out.

GANGES — Street lights will likely be installed at Ganges, Fulford Bay and Vesuvius Bay next year, it was announced at a meeting of Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce. Installation will probably be made by B.C. Power Commission.

Plan Joint Meeting

NANAIMO — Representatives of all chambers of commerce on Vancouver Island will be invited to a meeting in Nanaimo on Nov. 26 to outline a joint policy for the forthcoming year. According to W. A. Hutchings of the Nanaimo chamber, emphasis will be placed on pooling of information, advertising and costs.

Early Decision On Return Of Esquimalt Destroyers

Will Sail For Home One At A Time, Says Defence Minister Claxton

Defence Minister Brooke Claxton said here Monday night an early announcement probably will be made on when the three Esquimalt-based destroyers will return from Korean waters.

There have been no changes in plans for the return of the vessels so far, he said.

It was stated some time ago the destroyers probably will sail for Esquimalt one at a time, with H.M.C.S. Sioux the first and Cayuga and Athabaskan following, all returning by April next year.

Mr. Claxton, who arrived here Monday with Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, Chief of Air Staff for Canada, and other officials from Ottawa, is remaining until Thursday afternoon to inspect military and naval establishments.

He said serious consideration is being given to formation of an R.C.A.F. reserve force in the Greater Victoria area, but there was little chance an auxiliary squadron will be based here. The auxiliary squadron at Vancouver will be strengthened.

The minister said the air force reserve unit for Victoria probably would be trained in radar and general ground work.

Mr. Claxton reviewed Canada's accelerated defence program stating his department recently placed a $275,000,000 order for aircraft, an $80,000,000 order for electronics and wireless equipment and an $80,000,000 order for navy ships.

The navy shipbuilding program includes seven new-type anti-submarine vessels, 10 minesweepers (three at local shipyards), an icebreaker and five smaller boats.

First keel-laying in the shipbuilding program will be on Nov. 24 at the Canadian Vickers yard at Montreal.

Refitting and modification of reserve navy ships will be continued. The cruiser Uganda is not to be recommissioned, "in the foreseeable future" though. Production has been started of a radically new three-inch gun for both the Canadian and U.S. navies. This, said Mr. Claxton, was a major step in standardization between the armed forces of the two countries.

Following his arrival at Patricia Bay in an R.C.A.F. North Star aircraft, Mr. Claxton inspected a guard of honor from H.M.C.S. Naden, and visited H.M.C. Dockyard.

After lunching with Rear Admiral W. B. Creery, Flag Officer Pacific Coast, Mr. Claxton visited the cruiser Ontario.

In the evening he was seated at a provincial government dinner.

Du Pont Blast Felt Far Away

LINDEN, N.J. (AP)—A tongue of blue flame shot 100 feet into the air as an explosion shook the huge E. I. du Pont de Nemours plant here Tuesday night, but only minor injuries were reported.

The blast shook houses and broke windows in Elizabeth, five miles away. It was heard as far as Brooklyn, 10 miles across New York Bay from here.

A plant spokesman said an ammonia tank blew up on the second floor of one of the buildings of the sprawling heavy chemical plant. The explosion buckled the walls and crumbled plaster.

Welcome, Mr. Claxton

CANADA'S MINISTER OF NATIONAL Defence, Hon. Brooke Claxton, has a stiff job on his hands. Whatever he does for the Dominion of Canada in her determination to play her part in the defence of liberty may be criticized. Some of the critics, unacquainted with the facts of the international situation, may talk without the book. Such people need not be taken seriously.

It is a happy circumstance, however, that Mr. Claxton has come out to Victoria to discuss with the leaders of the armed forces in this Pacific outpost matters that are important—and may be more important—to the arrangement into which Canada and the United States have entered.

Not only as an eminent Minister of the Crown in the cabinet of Prime Minister St. Laurent, but also as a native-born Canadian of the ancient Province of Quebec, our distinguished visitor knows what war means. He served overseas in the First Great War with the 10th Canadian Siege Battery as a sergeant-major and was awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal. And he is entitled to place after his name, such initials as K.C. and B.C.L.—implying no mean accomplishments.

Mr. Claxton is one of those sturdy Canadians who intend to carry out the mission he has accepted. That he will do it to the best of his ability goes without saying. At the same time, it should be noted by those who prefer to play politics rather than face the stern facts of life at this stage of the world's progress, the Minister of National Defence has information in his possession which, in the interests of national security, cannot be disclosed. Let criticism, therefore, be tempered by sanity.

A Man Has Been Killed

IT IS FOUR DAYS SINCE 80-YEAR-old William Savidge, crossing Douglas St. after alighting from his bus, was fatally struck with such violence by an old model sedan that his badly broken body was thrown more than 50 feet. Though daylight was fading, it seems virtually impossible that the driver of the car which hit the man could have been unaware of the impact. He or she is now sought by police to face a serious charge in which the hit-and-run element is a vital ingredient.

There can be little sympathy for the fugitive. Though the police report indicates that the victim could not have been assisted, his condition could not have been known by anyone who was in the car at the time. Apart entirely from the legal responsibility entailed, simple humanity demanded that the driver stop to see if he or she could in any way give the man relief. Both the law of the land and the law of humanity have been flouted. Panic may have sent the driver hurrying on the way, trying to escape the consequences of the accident, but whatever the cause of flight, justice demands that the culprit be brought to book.

It is a matter of good citizenship that any person having a clue to the identity of the driver, or possessing any evidence which may lead to his or her apprehension, should give it to the police. This is not suggested in any spirit of vindictiveness. It is urged only in the interests of public safety. If drivers are given any reason to believe that they can become involved in accidents and speed away without facing their responsibilities, the dangers of the highway will be increased. Too often that course is attempted. It fails almost invariably. In the present instance a life has been lost. It is no time to condone an act which, in the most favorable light, is that of a person unbalanced by fright, or, at the worst, is a deed of cowardice and outright callousness.

Another Dilemma For The U.N.

TIBET'S FORMAL APPEAL FOR help from the United Nations as a result of invasion by Chinese Communists poses a new and delicate situation for the global peace body.

It will not be difficult to draw close parallels between the Tibetan and Korean incidents: the defencelessness of the victim, the unprovoked nature of the attack, the insistent expansionist urge of the Communist hierarchy that determines the program of aggression. But whereas Korea was accessible to rescuing forces, Tibet is landlocked and isolated. Whereas in the case of Korea the embroilment of China's millions in the struggle was a calculated risk—a risk whose seriousness is still not definitely ascertainable—direct intervention in Tibet would bring United Nations forces immediately up against the Chinese Communist army, and the cold prospect of a third world war.

At the same time, to ignore—however reluctantly—the Tibetan appeal would serve to discredit the U.N. Charges of discrimination would immediately be raised. The worthy purposes and objectives of the Korean defence would again be attacked by the Kremlin's propagandists. The arguments that were advanced in support of Korean intervention must inevitably be examined in the light of the news from Lhasa.

It is not, of course, the first time the United Nations have been faced with apparently unsolvable dilemmas. But the growing strength of the decisions that have been made to date gives promise that a way will be found. It may not be the military course of armed assistance. It is difficult at the moment to see where that could be obtained and how it could be applied. But there may be other avenues through which world opinion can be expressed: economic or political rather than military. Whether these would be effective is another question. Where the only recognized authority is force, as it is in Communist regimes, there is little choice in the replies that can be made to aggression.

Some Bits And Pieces

It's a pity that a man can't wear out his favorite story by his continuing to tell it upon every occasion.

The U.S. must be getting better. The F.B.I.'s most wanted criminal is a man you've never heard of before.

Red China's Warlike Program Suggests U.N. Seat Unwanted

By BRUCE BLOSSAT, from New York

WITH the entry into the Korean fighting of a fresh army of "alien Communist forces" as General MacArthur referred to the Chinese Communists, even the U.N. commander-in-chief apparently realizes that he spoke too soon when he said that the Korean war would be over soon. Pushed back almost to the Manchurian border, the North Koreans rallied and went over to the offensive. Probably they could not have achieved this turnaround on their own. They did it through reinforcement by an undetermined number of Chinese Communist troops and the receipt of new Soviet weapons, including self-propelled guns, rockets, tanks, and even jet fighter planes.

This counter-effort hardly classifies as full-scale intervention by the Chinese Reds. If that had been the Communist aim, it would have made much more sense to have joined the battle long before the United Nations forces were near Manchuria.

Stalin seems to have settled upon limited intervention instead. Why?

Military observers are making much of the fact that large hydro-electric developments important to the Manchurian economy lie on the Korean side of the border. They believe the Chinese may be bent primarily on keeping control of these facilities.

Others put more stress upon strict military and political factors. They see the Red rally as an effort, for one thing, to pin down U.N. forces through the bitter Korean winter, so they can't be freed for rest and possible duty in other critical sectors of the world.

Furthermore, it's felt this attempt to keep the border areas in Red hands may be linked directly with a Russian desire to promote prolonged guerrilla warfare in Korea. The success of guerrilla fighting in Greece was due largely to the fact that the rebels could mount their offensives from the territory of surrounding Red nations. Once Yugoslavia, the chief helper, closed its border, the Greek guerrillas did not last long.

SAVING FACE?

There's also the view that this Korean "Battle of the Bulge" may help Communists generally to salvage some of the "face" they have lost through the series of defeats inflicted by U.N. forces since the Inchon landing.

Meantime, China's Red regime, by joining in the Korean war, has given one more convincing argument why it should not be admitted to the United Nations. Indeed, from their showing in Tibet and Korea, one can only conclude the Chinese Communists don't WANT to be admitted.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

DR. D. S. DEGROOT, coach at the University of New Mexico, says that modern athletes are too soft. They lack stamina, he says, and also lack the necessary attitude toward hardship. They ride too much and walk too little. They spend their time at movies and round radios, and they eat what is mainly confectionery. All this, of course, is true. He adds that three-quarters of his football players have to close their eyes while tackling!

But when he says that such things as movies are a cause of their softness, I am not so sure. Surely a reasonably tough man should be able to stand a few movies without going all to pieces? And when he says they should be getting nine hours' sleep or more, I think of Dr. Alexis Carrel, whose complaint about modern athletes was that they needed too much sleep and too much food and too much pampering all round.

CARREL said that far from being hard and fit, these men are soft and fit for nothing. 'They can't even stay on the field for more than a few minutes' play. They are treated like incubator babies. How a truly tough man, like a Serbian bandit or a Gurkha soldier, would laugh at these sensitive growths who cannot stand fatigue, exposure, germs, mild poison, or even criticism!

My heart always goes out to the perfect athlete who still manages to treat athletics as a sideline, and almost casually. There is a thrill in seeing (and hearing) Cyrano compose lyrics while duelling, there is also great satisfaction in hearing of an athlete who gets good marks while making the first team, or who carries on a profession successfully while playing for his country. To that extent, at least, amateurism does matter. It matters aesthetically, for it increases a very civilized pleasure.

MY HEART also goes out to the man who can play a whole game without without substitution, or play several kinds of games superbly, or win several events on one program. It goes out, too, to the man whose severe training really does train him; we all like to see a man school and discipline himself into doing more than his best. But most of all (and this is probably perverse of me) my heart warms to the man who is a world beater on no training at all and who breaks all the rules of hygiene while breaking the sissified fitness-frends.

I think with the deepest pleasure of the South African farmer who was a distance runner after a hard day's farming, and who trained on cigars and beer, and who would stop in the middle of a long race for a few drinks and smokes and then catch up with the boys and run them ragged, and he an old boy, and they trained athletes.

HE COULD RUN a horse down within a few hours, or so I have read in what seems reliable print. On one occasion a horse fell dead on being overhauled, but maybe that was only from shock. This farmer once jogged 100 miles in something like 14 hours, but it sticks in my mind he did better things than that. He sounds like Bonny Black Bess. And he sounds like the boy for me.

There is even a malicious pleasure in thinking of Babe Ruth beating them all on late nights and a pot-belly. And as Aldous Huxley pointed out long ago, it will some day be wonderful fun to gather an Olympic team of Dinkas (from the Sudan, is it?) and watch them mop the ground with all the trained and semi-professional college monomaniacs.

YO HO AND A BOTTLE OF YOGHURT The faddists who want me to drink yoghurt (or does one eat it?) are very careful not to call the stuff Bulgarian culture, because eating or drinking Bulgarian culture was an old fad and these blokes want their share of it to be a new fad.

Nevertheless, Bulgarian culture is what yoghurt is. And bad luck to the stuff, and all who consume it. The main reason for imbibing this curdled mess of beneficial microbes is that the savages of Bulgaria always live to be about 150 years old, which must prove that the yoghurt cause, this delayed action demise. But heavens, Bulgarian old age may be caused by anything; it may be caused simply by being a Bulgarian, which I am not.

And are you quite sure you want to live to 150 in any event? If you are tired and broke at 80, just think how tired and broke you'll be at almost twice that age. If the world is bad, you don't want to hang around in it any longer than is absolutely compulsory, while if it is good, you can have quite enough fun without becoming a yoghurt addict.

SOMEBODY asked me if I had read about yoghurt in The Reader's Digest last month. "What do you mean, last month?" I asked. "Isn't The Reader's Digest the same every month?" He said not. He said there was an article by one Gayelord Hauser, telling us we should eat yoghurt and black-strap molasses and such. I said I thought I had read a cheap novel about 30 years ago called "The Gay Lord Quex" or something of that sort. I had that anything to do with the gay Lord Hauser? I didn't seem to recall anything about yoghurt in the novel, though, and to that extent it was a good novel.

I asked my friend if he could think of one single use for yoghurt, and he said yes, it made a rough and ready rhyme for Humphrey Bogart? a need long felt in Hollywood. "Humphrey Bogart owes it all to yoghurt." But you've got to mumble and talk out of the side of your mouth to make it rhyme properly, as if you were Humphrey himself or as if you had a mouthful of yoghurt.

Sending In A New Team

As Our Readers See It

SOLDIER'S INTERPRETATION

APPROPOS of recent discussions of education, I was attending an entertainment one night in the town hall in Bloemfontein, South Africa, and at that time there was a British regiment stationed there and the hall was crammed with soldiers.

Over the stage of the hall was the following Latin inscription, "Palam meruit qui ferat." Just behind from where I sat, I overheard the following: "Say, Bill, wot's that there furrin' language?" His friend replied, "That's Dutch, and it means 'There ain't no smoking allowed.'"

"OBSERVER."

DIVERT VS. AVERT

MR. J. H. GRAY in your issue of Nov. 8 appears to imply that these words are interchangeable and then proceeds to demonstrate the contrary. His case is not clarified by a trifling misprint; surely "my course" should have read "any course." The respective meanings of the words in question may be illustrated thus: "The Dutch diverted a river to avert calamity." Rather scornfully Mr. Gray refers a previous correspondent to "Daniel Webster . . . the great lexicographer." No, Mr. Gray; not Daniel.

ADDRESSED TO 'HUMANIST'

As you say in your letter, "Queen of Heaven," it is little wonder that skeptics are plentiful nowadays where Christianity is concerned.

What we want, but lack for the greater part, is some sensible teaching of our religion. Certainly we don't get it from our churches either as children or adults. It looks to me as if our teachers and preachers are both ignorant and afraid, with the result that people simply stay away from, or openly condemn, the churches.

That doesn't mean that these same people are wicked—they are merely puzzled, bewildered, amused, disgusted, nauseated. They feel about as you and I do, or did, I should say, speaking for myself, because a month or so ago I happened to take from the public library that latest book of George Santayana's, "The Idea of Christ in the Gospels, or God in Man," a critical essay, published in 1946, when he was 83 years old, for he was born in 1863.

Scarcely knowing a thing about him, I looked up what was handy in their reference room. What I got aroused my interest, and I set to work on the book. I read and re-read it, chapter by chapter, slowly and studiously. I renewed it and restudied it. The thing was getting me, for I was finding in it the most satisfactory explanation of Christianity—of all religions—that I had ever yet come across.

The author, a poet-philosopher of high rank in American and English universities for many years, doubts if he is a Christian himself. He hardly thinks he is! Certainly he can tell all about it, and does so in this wonderfully clear book.

Without fear he puts a meaning into the church and its work, its officers and its rites. He does this, I would say, by (1) giving its background, (2) explaining inspiration, (3) explaining miracle, parable, prophecy, revelation as used in the gospels and the epistles, (4) the task before the early church fathers in compiling the Bible and deciding on a creed, their purpose being to lay a proper foundation for a world-church.

Then, through human frailty, this world-church became so corrupt that there needs must be a reformation—with what a result!—from the free, open Bible all these sects!

However, sister or brother, there is a very simple, plausible meaning to religion, once you see it, and this book will help you to do just that, I feel sure. If it does, perhaps you will let me know?

GOING UP AND UP

These last few weeks things have gone so high in price that everyone I know is getting angry, and the shops charge too much on that three per cent purchase tax.

It should be one cent up to 49 cents, but they charge two cents; a 50-cent purchase should be two cents.

I don't often eat in restaurants, but at lunch one day two women I noticed had 50-cent meals, paid their bills, then ordered sundae, avoiding the tax!

Up to now I've always been able to buy what I needed, but in a few years' time, a good many of us will have to go off the deep end, or get help of some kind if the H.C. of "Ell" goes much higher.

NOTHING FOR FREE

Windsor Star

As a sort of birthday party for himself, a Chicago taxi driver offered free rides to anybody. Not a single customer accepted his offer. It surely is a commentary on our times when we regard with suspicion anything that we don't have to pay plenty for.

On Being Watched

The Times of London

IT was the disconcerting habit of a certain large employer to ring up members of his staff from time to time and tell them in tones full of awful meaning that he was "watching them." The same sensations of ill-defined apprehension must have been suffered by Compton during his first century of the Australian tour at Perth, for during his long innings he was watched with unwavering solemnity by a small boy through the lens of a red telescope.

DETERMINED SCRUTINY

Nothing could be more upsetting than the knowledge that every stroke, every slip, every sparkling drive and every rash decision were being subjected to such determined scrutiny.

What Tennyson called a "lidless watch" is being kept on most of us for the greater part of our lives, yet we are still, as ever, faintly uncomfortable under it. We have been watched by nurses and hopeful parents, by schoolmasters and commanding officers, by thoughtful seniors and secretly scornful juniors; nothing can harden us to the process.

Now, so we are assured, we are being watched, too, by unseen eyes on another planet, as attentive as ever our mentors were, as disparaging, no doubt, as any of our subordinates.

It is a comfort to know, in such a tirelessly vigilant universe, that someone at least has been in a more uncomfortable situation than any we have endured; for nothing could be quite so disturbing, not even the rheumy old gaze of the professors or the waving antennae of the Martians, as that baleful, dispassionate, sleepless eye glued to the eye-piece of the red telescope at Perth.

AGRA, India—If a man says, as I did yesterday, that the Taj Mahal is the most beautiful building in the world, I suppose he should be able to say why. Yet picking the petals from a rose is always so unsatisfying. Instead, let's just talk about the Taj and see what happens. It is a tomb, a large domed and minareted tomb that presumably stands on the bank of a river and in a large park of trees, gardens and fountains. I say presumably stands, for it has a fairly look about it that makes it float on its horizon of hedges and flowers. At dusk or in the light of the moon you have a feeling that if you look away for a moment it will be gone.

Smith

Well, I must keep my feet on the ground. This large tomb will better imagine if I call it a palace, for that is what it looks like. In fact, Taj Mahal means crown of palaces.

MIXED CHARACTER

It was built between 1632 and 1647 by one of the great Muslim Emperors of India, Shahjahan. He was not an altogether savory character, mixing a rugged brand of torture with a superior wisdom to give India an efficient and entirely dictatorial administration. Officials who disobeyed were exposed to one of a basket of poison snakes. Others were let into an arena with a mad elephant. And war generals who fled were executed and their wives were visited upon their wives and daughters with the placing of rats in their clothes "to disgrace and frighten them."

Indeed, Shahjahan, to whom the world is indebted for this wondrous palace, got to his throne by murdering his last surviving brother, blinding his nephew and strangling three cousins.

But Shahjahan loved his wife dearly, the beautiful daughter of a Persian who had been his father's prime minister. And it is for her memory the Taj Mahal was built. For in 1631, when she was still but 39, Mumtaz-Mahal died of childbirth in a camp of war to which she had gone with her husband. It was her 14th child.

HONORED MEMORY

The Emperor determined to do her memory justice. To the corners of the world he sent for experts in architecture and the building arts, and the task was given to a native of Turkey, one Ustad Isa. But it is interesting to note that history is not certain of this and though we know whose money was used to build the Taj Mahal identity of the genius responsible for its design and construction is left in some doubt.

The Taj Mahal is made of the choicest pieces of marble that could be found. And into that marble are set precious and semi-precious stones, and are carved figures and scriptural passages from the Koran. There is a little bit of red sandstone from a nearby area, but here is where the rest of the materials were brought from:

Marble from Jaipur, Jasper from the Punjab, Jade and crystal from China, turquoise from Tibet, lapis lazuli and sapphires from Ceylon, coral and carnelian from Arabia, diamonds from Bundelkhand, onyx and amethyst from Persia and lodestone from Gwalior. Even the ocean contributed her bounty: pearls and mother-of-pearl.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"THEY tell me," said the Elevator Man, "that a change is as good as a rest. But it all depends on what you want it to do for you. It may be as good. It may even be better. But it may be a lot worse. Take a fella who spends all his time in an office sitting on the end of his spine, for instance, and put him outdoors splitting 'em on the end of a shovel. Instead of resting him, it may change him till he's almost unrecognizable—to himself or his friends. Or pull a fella in off the roads and the him to a desk. He may be scared half dead by the thought of it. The change will do the rest. Going up!"

"The thing they overlook," said the Elevator Man, "is that most people like the grooves and ruts they get into, even when they don't fit them. They may like a rest, but a change is the last thing they really want. They figure monotony is a low price to pay for security—and they stay put. The psychiatrists go to a lot of trouble these days trying to keep round pegs from getting into square holes. But you seldom hear the pegs complaining. And you may have noticed that the square pegs are the hardest to get out of the round holes once they've got jammed in there. Going down!"

"Some people," said the Elevator Man, "would rather try and change the place they're in than move to a different one. They figure they'll stay the same and the rest can change. You'll likely remember that story about the determined lady who got into a smoking compartment of a train, thinking it was a non-smoking. When an old fellow got in and lit his pipe, she glared at him icily. Finally she grated, 'Sir, I'll have you know that smoking makes me ill.' 'That so, m'am?' he says, puffing contentedly. 'Take my advice and give it up.'"

350 Men Of U.N. Brigade's Advance Party Grateful For Few Comforts In Pusan

By DAVE McINTOSH

PUSAN, Korea (CP)—The Canadian advance party of the special brigade is bunked down and happy as possible in this dirty corner of the world.

The 350 men have taken over a couple of old school buildings on the side of a hill overlooking this city, about the size of Saint John, N.B.

The barracks are as far as possible away from the filth of the streets and open sewers. One of the first jobs was to clean the buildings thoroughly before installing the kitchen, showers and so on.

From the waterfront, a paved road of sorts leads across a drawbridge to a steep hill. The pavement gives out at the bottom of the hill and from there on the dirt road is scarred by deep ruts and rocks.

At the top, past an old stone gate, sits the former school building. When the Canadians moved in, there were cots and that was all. There were no lights, drinking water or heat of any kind. There were holes in the floors and panes missing from the windows.

The latrine was a primitive, open building near the barracks. The stench from it was indescribable. The medical officer blew his top when he took a look, ordered an immediate overhaul.

Still, the Canadians say they've got better than they had back

LEGION VOTES RANKS TO STAY

OTTAWA (CP)—Military ranks stick, as far as the Canadian Legion is concerned. It turned down a move to have all members called plain "mister" instead of officers being called by their wartime ranks.

The Dominion executive council settled that question in a recent four-day meeting. A B.C. command resolution had requested the rank practice be done away with so far as veterans are concerned.

Some Ideas For Making Christmas Decorations

By HILDA BEASTALL

It is by no means too early to look around your own garden, and the woods, for your Christmas decorations.

You may already have some favorite color scheme which you are planning to use, but be sure to add some live flowers or evergreens in at least one arrangement.

Perhaps you will have some paper white narcissus flowering by Christmas week. Have you ever tried using them with holly in a low bowl for the dinner table?

If you have thought red bells and red crepe paper the only authentic items to use, try evergreen sprays and silver bells. Remember that in the home, as in the garden, a little red goes a long way.

For a really effective decoration to use on a small side table, attach a single cluster of holly berries to a squat white candle set on a flat bed of cedar sprays.

There are also many kinds of cotoneasters which have red berries. The flat, fan-like sprays of the low-growing varieties are easy to use, and look beautiful in large rooms when placed against pastel painted walls.

Any of the cone-bearing trees are invaluable for winter decorations. You may like to wire cones of graduated sizes into the form of a door-swing, adding a large bow of ribbon. Should your front door have no porch to keep off rain and snow, be sure to place a sheet of wax paper behind the swag to prevent unsightly stains from the colored ribbon.

The lovely Christmas Roses (Helleborus niger), placed in a green or silver bowl, make a centerpiece not soon forgotten. They are also attractive in a low arrangement for the mantel.

Whatever you have used in the past, decide now that you will adopt at least one new idea in flower or green arrangements for your home, and don't forget to give a decoration to your friends who are not fortunate enough to have a garden.

Early plans and simple material give best effects.

Toronto—First Aluminum-ware factory in Canada

Building the home for Wear-Ever

1950 is the fiftieth anniversary of the Wear-Ever line in Canada. These aluminum cooking utensils were introduced here at the beginning of the century. Their popularity grew so rapidly that, by 1912, a new factory was needed to supply the demand. This was built in Toronto. It was the first plant in Canada to make aluminum articles—and this was only a dozen years after the first Canadian smelter had started making aluminum ingots at Shawinigan Falls.

Today Alcan has twelve plants, all of them engaged in the aluminum industry, while more than 1000 independent companies across Canada shape the metal into all sorts of useful forms—from kettles to freight cars.

No Multiple Stations For December City Vote

Council Rescinds Motion Which Would Have Added Four To Present Central Polling Point

Multiple polling stations are out for the Dec. 14 civic election.

A motion to provide four stations in addition to the present central station, passed by City Council a week ago, was rescinded at a special meeting Monday.

The matter will be referred to the 1951 council. Suggestion from four organizations that the proposed four stations be increased to nine was not acted upon.

That in brief was the result of a lengthy and frequently cloudy debate in City Council chambers.

Original reason for calling the meeting, which was to obtain council approval of a legislative committee endorsement for nine additional stations was mentioned.

Ald. William Pinfold and Ald. Hilda Baxter who voted against the original motion stuck to their electoral guns, and wound up with sufficient support to upset the action of a previous council meeting.

NO REFERENDUM

An amendment to the motion by Ald. Waldo Skiddings and seconded by Ald. Harold Diggon that the electors be asked at the December elections whether they favor multiple polling or not, was lost.

Voting for the Pinfold-Baxter motion were: Mayor Percy George, Ald. Margaret Christie, Ald. Percy Scurrah, Ald. C. F. Banfield. Supporting the Skiddings-Diggon amendment were Aldermen Duncan McTavish, Frank Mulliner and J. D. Hunter. The mayor cast the deciding ballot.

Legal difficulties with the possibility that the city might be without full municipal government or more should the election be challenged, raised by city solicitor A. J. Patton in a letter filed Monday, caused aldermen to favor rescinding the original motion.

"I know of no great public pressure," said Ald. Pinfold. "There has been some agitation, but I don't know that they represent any great portion of the public."

Chamber of Commerce, Victoria Property Owners' Association, Trades and Labor Council and Non-Partisan League were main groups pressing for the multiple polling system.

On the mayor's suggestion, a letter will be sent to the U.B.C.M. executive meeting at Vancouver Wednesday asking them to bring to the government's attention a suggestion that power be given to any municipality which wishes to split the voters' list in order to make legal voting at multiple polling stations.

ONCE A YEAR

"Citizens make this trip once in a whole year," Ald. Pinfold told the meeting.

"Most of the city is within a two-mile circle; no citizen lives more than approximately 20 minutes from the central polling station."

"We should leave this matter to the incoming council rather than deal with it on the eve of an election," contended Ald. Pinfold, who felt that since the matter was raised in the mayor's inaugural address at the beginning of the year, the council had had ample time to deal with it earlier.

"Why is this matter being brought up at the 11th hour?"

Ald. Skillings and Ald. Diggon both spoke in favor of a referendum at the coming election. Mayor George feared the electorate needed direction from council on the matter.

"I maintain the electorate has far more knowledge of what is going on than we think," said Ald. Skillings. "They are as well informed as any electorate in B.C."

Said Ald. Diggon: "Had the solicitor told the legislative committee of the jeopardy, I don't think we would have brought up the motion. The solicitor didn't have time to give the matter the study and analysis it deserved."

Ald. Mullinger spoke on similar lines, stating that he had favored the original motion but had to change his mind in view of Mr. Patton's letter.

"We are not justified in putting the city in jeopardy," Dr. Hunter said. "We are putting ourselves in a dangerous position."

CHRISTMAS TREE 211 FT. 11 IN. TRAVERSES SEATTLE STREETS

SEATTLE (AP)—This season's contender for the world's biggest Christmas tree—211 feet 11½ inches of near-naked fir—travels through Seattle Tuesday en route to the suburban Northgate community.

The huge 287-year-old forest giant will be hoisted, decked and lighted Thanksgiving night Nov. 23 under the sponsorship of the merchants of the community. The tree was cut near Enumclaw.

The Christmas tree committee did some careful checking into previous "biggest trees" before proclaiming theirs the grand-daddy of them all. Bellingham's monster last year soared 154 feet.

MILKMAN'S HORSE CHOOSES HIS OWN ROUTE

STRAITFORD, Ont. (CP)—A few Stratford people didn't get their milk on schedule Monday because a new horse was on the route. The horse and milkman started out together from the dairy. The milkman left the wagon to make deliveries and went his usual way. The horse went its usual way. It took two hours and about eight miles of truck patrol around city streets before they got together again.

Saanich Prepares Two Referendums To Halt Flock Of Road Complaints

Complaints of the road situation in Saanich continue to come before Saanich Municipal Council, which considered six requests at its regular meeting Monday night.

Improvements were asked by Mrs. Winnifred Bacon, 567 Tait Street; T. A. Simmons, 1698 McRae Avenue; I. D. McKinnell, 2770 Murray Drive; and Brian Bowden, 3943 Winton Street.

They were referred to H. D. Dawson, municipal engineer, and complainants will be informed of forthcoming by-laws calling for referendums on reconstruction of secondary roads. Voters may choose between two referendums, one calling for work to be done by local improvement, the other out of general revenue.

Mr. Bowden claimed he had damaged four tires because of rough roads, and that the patching work being done was inefficient, writing that "of all the incompetent wasting of civic funds, this takes the cake."

Also referred to the engineer were a request from Henry Reimer for a road sign on Willerton Road, and a complaint from J. A. V. Long, West Saanich and Rushton Road, that sand and gravel dumped on the road had made it almost impassable.

TELEPHONE EXCHANGES

The council will ask the B.C. Telephone Company to poll its customers as to whether they want Albion, Belmont, and Colquitz exchanges combined with the city exchanges. The company pointed out that such a move, while eliminating toll charges, would increase costs and necessitate an increase in rates.

It sought support of the council, which will withhold endorsement until a poll is taken.

The council passed a unanimous motion to support a request of Victoria Chamber of Commerce toward having a single telephone directory for Vancouver Island, rather than the two now in existence.

W. Burnham, who erected a building on Charlton Road at Granville Street without a permit, reported by J. S. Taylor, building inspector, to be a dwelling on completion, will be allowed 30 days to remove the building, according to a council decision.

Applications from A. M. Bonnell to erect a temporary dwelling on Kenmore Road, and from Walter C. Hopkins to keep chickens on Torquay Drive, were refused.

Mrs. B. Elliott, 241 Cadillac Avenue, who applied to the council for a trades license to operate a small dressmaking business at her home address, will be referred to the zoning board, with the council's approval.

The council endorsed the action of the fire chief, who reported he had returned a quantity of fire hose recently purchased from B.C. Brokerage on approval. It was found to be not suitable, the chief reported.

Mrs. K. C. Cook, 3966 Blenkinsop Road, and Miss Evelyn Hawkins, 1740 Cedar Avenue, who claimed compensation for loss of chickens killed by dogs, will be paid the regular compensation, council decided.

Big projects to improve Venetia's airports are being carried out to meet the increased traffic.

COUNCIL CLEARS WAY FOR $28,000 DRAINAGE VOTE

A by-law calling for a referendum on the spending of a sum equal to two mills assessment, which would amount to $28,000, on drainage in the municipality, passed second reading in Saanich Municipal Council Monday night.

If passed, this sum will be spent on relieving drainage problems anywhere in the municipality. Areas suffering most at present are Colquitz, Swan Lake, Blenkinsop Lake, and Braefoot.

The money would come from general revenue. Councillors F. S. Green and W. C. Kersey were against the by-law.

However, another by-law proposing a referendum on the suitability of doing drainage work under local improvement was defeated, having the support only of Councillors John G. Ryan, L. H. Passmore, and Sydney Pickles.

Saanich Approves Rezoning For Big Drive-In Theatre

By a unanimous decision, Saanich Municipal Council Monday night decided to rezone the Tillikum-Burnside area to permit erection of a $150,000 drive-in theatre.

W. H. M. Haldane, appearing for B. M. Chechik and M. W. Chechik of Vancouver, who propose to build the theatre, said it would enhance the value of the property, would lead to the building of homes and stores, and would be a source of revenue for the municipality.

E. W. Izard, Arundel Drive, objected such a project should be located at least four miles from a residential area, in that residents of the district would find noise from the theatre trying.

NEW YORK—In the considered opinion of the baseball writers, Phil Rizzuto was the most valuable player in the American League last summer, Jim Konstanty the indispensable man of the National, Walt Dropo the American's stickout rookie, Eddie Sawyer the manager-of-the-year, and so on. In some cases the vote was fairly close. If there were another poll to pick the most honest, sincere and altogether genuine guy in baseball, it would be no contest.

Tommy Henrich would walk in, bum knee and all. Papers recently quoted Tommy's doubts about undertaking another spring training course with the Yankees.

"If the knee doesn't come around the way I want it to," he said, "I won't try to play. I'm not looking for any sympathy or any job on sentiment alone. The Yankees have been mighty good to me and I don't think it's fair for me to be on the payroll with a bum knee."

There are a lot of fine guys in baseball, as in any other field. There is none whose word you could take in a matter like this with greater certainty that he meant exactly what he said.

Henrich To Make His Own Decision

A few hours after Henrich's remarks were published, the Yankees announced that Tommy had decided against an operation on the knee because there was no assurance that surgery would help, that he had declined an invitation to manage a Yankee farm team (presumably Kansas City), and that he would test his knee in spring training before making a final decision about playing.

The considerations leading to this agreement with the Yankees are obvious. Tommy turned down the offer of a job as manager in the minors because, as long as hope remains that the knee may come around, he wants to continue doing what he does best—playing ball in the big league. He wants the evil day of departure postponed as long as possible.

So do we all. So do the Yankees.

Yanks Satisfied With Arrangement

The arrangement must be eminently satisfactory to the Yankees. Taking him to training camp costs them nothing save his expenses, for wages don't start until the championship season does. They know that no matter how large a salary his contract calls for, if he won't ask them to pay it if he can't do his best. If he can, he'll be worth every cent.

If one had wanted to do a sob story on Tommy, the opportunity was offered on the day before the World Series when the Yankees took him off the list of eligible players to make room for Johnny Hopp. Tommy had been helping the Yanks win pennants since 1937; he had served them in four World Series; he had done what he could to help them into this one. Now they were leaving him out.

His attitude toward that decision was exactly what you'd know it would have to be if you knew the guy at all. If his manager felt it would help the team to have another player in his place on the bench, then that was what Tommy wanted. He wanted no sob stories, no sympathy. He wants none now. He will want none when the inevitable day of departure arrives.

There Will Be A Job Waiting

When Henrich has played his last game for the Yankees, they will have a job for him if he wants it. Probably not the job he declined yesterday, because that will be filled by next spring, but neither will it be "a job on sentiment alone." It will be the job for which the Yankees consider him the best man available.

They are a business organization, the Yankees, and they can be as tough as the business sometimes demands. But the men who run the club are decent men and they are not stupid. They don't have to be reminded what Henrich has contributed to their organization. They don't have to be told that the Yankees and baseball would be poorer without him.

Baseball can't afford to lose its Tommy Henrichs. There aren't enough of 'em.

College Cagers Catch Fire In Second Half

Down Fletcher's In Senior B Upset; Totems Trip Students; C. And C. Rout Loggerettes

At first they could do nothing right, but then there came a great change. That was the story of last night's 42 to 29 victory by Victoria College Vikings over Fletcher's in a thrilling senior B men's basketball tilt that left the meagre crowd limp.

The College team was outshot, outchecked and outran in the first half and were trailing 20 to 13 at the breather in what seemed a lost cause. However, they came back furiously in the second canto to grab off a well deserved win.

Vikings scored seven points to knot the count several minutes after half-time but Gordie Bamford pushed up two long shots to give his crew the lead. Vikings then exploded for 14 straight points without a reply from their opponents. With Collegians' Gordie Humber and Bernie Clarkson pacing a torrid attack Vikings never looked back.

Bamford of the losers was high man with 16 points.

TOTEMS WIN

In the middle tussle of a fine three-game card, the Vic High Totems made their debut into intermediate A men's circles a victorious one by dumping the Chinese Students 34 to 23.

Totems controlled both backboards consistently and put up an iron-like zone defence, forcing the Students to revert to long shots. Students added further to their woes by managing to sink only two foul shots out of 12 tries. Pete Zarry and Norm Forbes scored 10 and nine points, respectively, for the Totems.

Bombers Picked As Grey Cup Champs

Coleman On Limb As Eks Take Sound Drubbing

By JIM COLEMAN
Special to the Times

WINNIPEG, Man.—Winnipeg Blue Bombers won the western Canada football championship Monday and, barring accidental destruction of some of their personnel, they should possess the Grey Cup about five o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 25.

Your eastern scout might as well make this prediction, without any further shilly-shallying, after watching the Bombers play three games against the Edmonton Eskimos.

This final western contest took place under edifying circumstances and the young athletes comforted themselves in a manner which would have been approved by the Canadian Humane Society. This reversal of form, after Saturday's bloody battle, resulted primarily from the fact that four new field officials—including Seymour Wilson and Sam Richardson of Toronto—were in charge of affairs.

PRAYER-SESSION

The officials called a "prayer-session" at midfield, prior to the opening of hostilities and, judging from results, Wilson must have delivered an oration that ranked with the public utterances of Winston Churchill or Patrick Henry. Not a single penalty, for such cardinal offences as scragging, gouging or garrotting was called during the afternoon and the only infractions of the rules were of a minor and technical nature.

The Winnipeggers didn't qualify themselves for ranking as Canada's number one team, simply because they disposed of the Eskimos. The Edmonton club has been building slowly for two years and is at least one more year away from the top rank. Neutral observers out here insist that Regina would have provided more competition than Edmonton. The Eskimos deserve full credit for winning even one game of this series from the Bombers.

In the final analysis they were outclassed. They strove desperately but they had nothing to match the ingenuity, power and diversity of the Winnipeg attack.

Monday's game really was over at the end of the first quarter the Bombers took the ball on the kickoff and scored within four minutes without losing possession. They added two singles and another sparkling touchdown by Tom Casey. They punched out another touchdown in the second quarter and were leading 20 to 0 at half time.

The statistics for the first half tell the story. Winnipeg registered 12 first downs to four for Edmonton; gained 247 yards to 113 yards for Edmonton and Jack Jacobs outkicked the Edmonton punsters almost 2 to 1.

SOLID CLUB

Let's look at it this way: the Winnipeggers have the one "solid" club in Canada, despite the fact that their 12 or 16 regulars have born the brunt during the season. Nonetheless, they have come through their schedule in good physical condition. It is important to remember that whichever eastern team meets them, must play two more games before the Grey Cup final. Disastrous casualties may be inflicted in those two games.

Teams and scores follow:
McNutt Loggerettes—Stevens, Real 2, Bates, Spunking 4, V. Heary, B. Koski 1, Linn, Wells 4, Sindlar, Coran, Johnson 2, Jay, Total: 13.

Totems—Woollett 4, Whan, Shields 3, Donahue, Pyne, Forbes 9, Burton, Abbott, Johnson 4, Zarry Total: 34.

TIME OUT!

By Jeff Kente

"Calls himself a hockey player! Why he's a sucker for a left hook!"

The Winnipeggers have the best front-line that we've seen in Canada this year: a fleet backfield and an outstanding quarterback in Jacobs, who on one punt Monday afternoon, kicked the ball all the way out of Osborne Stadium and into the Brammeisters' powder room at adjoining Shea's brewery.

Winnipeg's dominated their own league throughout the season. The Western League is just as strong as eastern Canada's Big Four and no eastern team managed to dominate its conference as completely as Winnipeg has dominated the west.

LEARNED LESSON

We think, too, that the Winnipeggers have learned an important lesson from the Calgary Stampede who traveled east to win the Grey Cup in 1948. Those Stampedeers arrived at Oakville six days before the Grey Cup final and coach Les Lear worked them until their tongues trailed on the turf. It was that final week of hard training, as much as anything else that won for Calgary.

The Winnipeggers will leave for the east by plane next Sunday. They are at the very peak of physical condition. Coach Frank Larsen's main job, is to keep them at this peak.

They have the best football club that this observer has ever watched in western Canada. It remains to be seen whether they have the best football club ever fielded in the Dominion.

We believe that this is a football club which may be remembered for years to come.

Bentley Still Pacing N.H.L. Pointmakers

MONTREAL (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs today hold a comfortable lead in the National Hockey League standing, and no small credit is due centre Max Bentley, Cal Gardner and Ted Kennedy, who hold down the three top scoring positions.

The Leafs, who have lost but two of the 14 games played to date, have 21 points, four more than the second-place Detroit Red Wings.

In the individual scoring race, Bentley picked up one goal and four assists last week to bring his point total to 19, five more than Gardner and Kennedy.

Maurice Richard of Montreal tops goal scorers with nine markers.

Toronto's Bentley leads in the assists department with 14.

RANGER-BRUIN DISCUSSIONS HINT OF TRADE

No Mention Of Players Made

There's no action in the National Hockey League tonight but the fans are wondering what's brewing between the Boston Bruins and New York Rangers. It looks like some players may soon be wearing new uniforms.

The Bruins in last place and the Rangers only a step ahead are reported to be talking trade . . . but so far neither club is mentioning players.

However, that doesn't stem the rumors which started last night following a conference between coach Lynn Patrick of the Bruins and Neil Colville of Rangers in New York. The only definite hint comes from a Ranger spokesman who says the talks "obviously" centered on player swaps.

Tillicums Boost Soccer Lead

Tillicums boosted their lead in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football League First Division standings over the weekend with a handy 4 to 0 decision over Pitzer and Nex, and Combines took over the runner-up slot with a narrow 1 to 0 victory over the Esquimalt Meat Market eleven.

Saanich Thistles humbled Balmoral Thistles, 4 to 0, in a second-division fixture and Cordova Bay suffered a 6 to 2 setback at the hands of Argosy Cafe in a fourth-division match.

"BUZZ" HUDSON
Turning out for the University of Washington Huskies freshmen basketball team in their first workout of the season Monday was Ralph "Buzz" Hudson, former member of the Vic High Totems. Hudson was one of the leading scorers on the Victoria squad last year. An all-round athlete, Hudson also played baseball, rugby, Canadian football and lacrosse in the city.

Packers Take Mainline Lead

VANCOUVER (CP)—Kerrisdale Monarchs finished in a familiar position last night, the losing end, to boost the victors, Kelowna Packers, up the Mainline-Okanagan ladder. By edging the Monarchs, 4 to 3, Kelowna ousted Nanaimo Clippers from the M.O.A.H.L. lead and filled the breach. The Packers, sweeping out of the hinterland, made it their third win in four starts.

EVERS HOME; CONDITION DANGEROUS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Merlin (Dutch) Evers, the injured hockey player, came back to his own country last night.

The player for New Westminster Royals of the Pacific Coast Hockey League was resting in General Hospital here today after an ambulance trip from Tacoma, Wash.

Evers' condition, however, is still listed as dangerous. He suffered critical head injuries nearly a month ago near Raymond, Wash., and was unconscious and close to death for weeks.

"Evers will surprise everybody," said Ken McKenzie, co-owner of the Royals. "That son-of-a-gun will turn up fit as a fiddle for the playoffs. Never saw anything like him in my life."

The Saskatchewan-born player was injured when an automobile he and other team members were traveling in struck a bridge abutment.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor.

This could be called the story of that mythical trio—any old Tom, Dick and Harry—except for the fact that the only Dick we can bring to mind is a bowler who has no place in this narrative, while Tom and Harry are two specific individuals about which much has been said during the past few weeks.

We refer of course to Tom Restell and Harry Young who found themselves in the centre of the biggest controversy to hit this town since Dave Nicol used to toss loaded bombshells into the ranks of the British Columbia Basketball Association every spring.

Tom and Harry are alike in a number of ways but their execution of ideas—especially on soccer—are slightly different and thus the trouble brewed.

For example, Tom and Harry both love football. As a matter of fact they're slightly fanatical in their allegiance to the sport. They both are family men, Tommy having three extra mouths to feed and Harry four of a slightly greater capacity. (That's probably the reason they both have that lean and hungry look.) And they're even in the same business in a round-about sort of way, Tommy being a salesman for a paper company and Harry an editor in this business of news writing.

Football Is Their Game

It was on soccer they clashed. People have been clashing on soccer here for a number of years but this time things reached a climax. The crux of the matter was that they both had a hand in running the United football team and someone was overstepping the bounds of his position. It makes little difference who was the instigator of the plot, though Young is no longer president. Both rue the day the trouble had its beginning for, as we've said before, they both have the game at heart and both have done much for its furtherance and will continue to give much more than for which they will ever receive credit.

There was talk of cliques, which brings to mind that United as it is now has a forward line which is not "cliquing" as it should. And cliques or not, Restell or not, Young or not, coach George Kulai is going to do something about it. Which, to our way of thinking, is the correct way to approach this business.

At the start of the season United had a long-range plan for a winning club. Perhaps not this season; perhaps not next year; but in three or four years. It was United's aim at the start of this season—if we recall correctly—to start building a championship club. There then came the expected defeats and setbacks. But with the defeats there also came an unexpected improvement in the calibre of play and with that improvement a hope that perhaps this might be the year after all.

The Future Is At Stake

Being rabid supporters as well as holding executive positions, Tom and Harry held hopes for a playoff position. It was said by Harry that the team if better chosen could have been a championship contender, but this defeats the purpose on hand of building for the future. However, in the opinion of Kulai, who actually is responsible to everyone for the team's performance, United's lack of punch is through no fault of the youngsters added to the team in the rebuilding process.

Kulai has laid the blame for the lack of goals strictly on the shoulders of the veterans who it would seem are playing on their reputations, and reputations have never scored many goals in any league that we know of.

Will Ferguson Speak?

All of which reminds us of two invitations that we received in the mail last week. One was to the Beachcombers' Ball of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, the other a dance in honor of the Shamrocks Lacrosse Club sponsored by the Sideliner's Club. With due respects to the Beachcombers, whom I'm certain are not the rugged individuals the name portrays, we'll accept the ticket from the Sideliners and maybe catch Arnold Ferguson off-guard in regard to plans for next year's lacrosse club.

BOUDREAU RECEIVES REQUESTED RELEASE

CLEVELAND (AP)—Lou Boudreau, deposed manager of Cleveland Indians, is going to be given his unconditional release at his own request.

Ellis Ryan, the club's president, announced this last night. It means that Boudreau will be a free agent "a little over a week from now," he said.

This puts a new slant on Cleveland's plans for Boudreau's future.

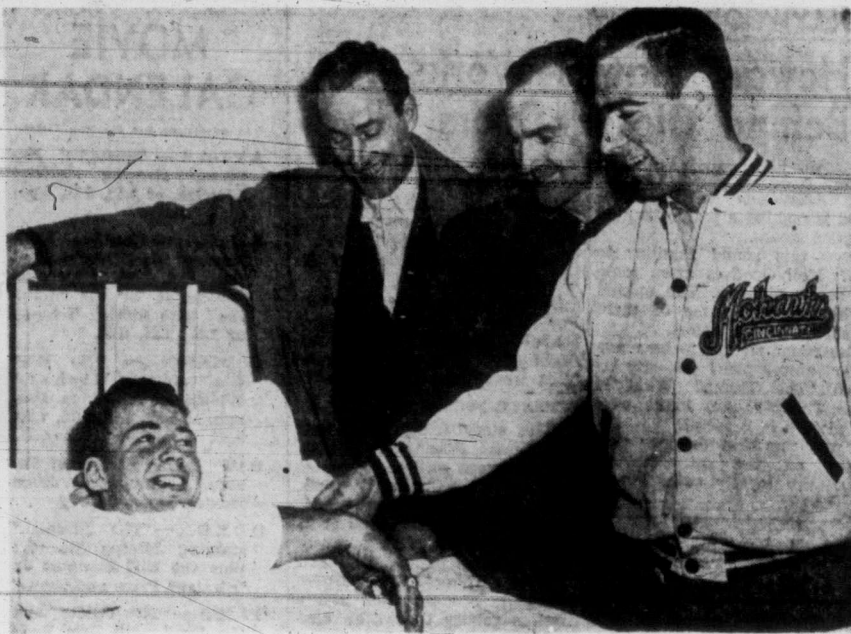

Although he was fired as manager, Lou still was the property

Bernie Strongman, left, and Joe Evans looking on. Heberton will likely be in the hospital for six or seven days, but will be lost to the team for at least a month. His place on the "kid line" will be taken by newcomer Geoff Burman at Vancouver tonight when the Cougars tackle Canucks.

Hec Highton Second Best Puck-Blocker

Whether the purchase of goalie Jerry Cotnair had something to do with it or not, Cougar goalie Hec Highton turned in a stellar performance during the last week as far as statistics go to take over the P.C.H.L.'s runner-up spot among the goalkeepers, weekly figures released from loop headquarters show.

Lucien Dechene, the portly New Westminster citadel guardian, is still in the number one position with a goals-against average of 2.53 a game. Highton's average is 3.4 and Tommy Karakas is third with 3.44.

Young Normie Kirk increased his scoring lead to two points over teammate Bobby Love during the past week. Kirk has potted 15 tallies and helped his mates on a dozen others for a total of 27 points. Love has nine goals and 16 assists.

$40,000 PROBLEM

Meyer To Demand Full Salary If Given Gate

PITTSBURGH (UP)—It will cost the Pittsburgh Pirates $40,000 to fire manager Billy Meyer. And since Pirate boss branch Rickey has been known to ponder at length over 40 cents, especially since the 30-cent blueplate (without dessert) really looked just as good, you can understand his delay in making a decision.

The $40,000 is Meyer's salary for the 1951 season. His contract still has a year to run at that price, and a source very close to the club said today Meyer has refused to leave without full payment. "In fact," this source said, "Billy's attitude about the money makes his chances of remaining with the club better now than at any time since the season ended—although he still may go."

Meyer came here Monday from his Birmingham, Ala., home at Rickey's summons. He conferred with Rickey for three hours, then came from the conference smiling. He would say nothing, except for the pleasantries he exchanged with reporters he knew.

Rickey, as usual, said plenty which told nothing. Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians and Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals both have been mentioned prominently as Meyer's successor.

Rickey insists that he has "given no consideration to anyone and will not until after I have talked with Meyer." The talks, it was indicated, would last three days.

The source which revealed

Meyer's salary demands said, "everyone knows Meyer is not Rickey's man. But Branch may decide to keep him for the year to save the $40,000. After all, Rickey knows he cannot do very much about the Pirates in '51. There's not enough time. It's '52 and thereafter he's thinking about."

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jockey Joe Culmone failed to gain ground Monday in his battle with Willie Shoemaker for top riding honors of the year, even though Shoemaker was grounded by an injury.

The 19-year-old Sicilian was put out of the winner circle with all six of his mounts, leaving him still seven victories behind Willie's modern record of 326.

Once Netminder, Varga Now Goalies' Nightmare

You'd probably never guess it, but 25-year-old Eddie Varga, goal scorer de luxe in the City Commercial Hockey League, started his hockey career back on the prairies some 15 years ago weighted down by the heavy pads.

Yes, it's true. Varga began the game with the hopes of becoming a goalkeeper. Due to certain circumstances, however, he shifted his activities to the forward line and now has become a scourge of local net custodians.

Although he is accused at times of being a goal-hanger when play is in the opposing zone, Varga is no novice when it comes to putting the puck in the net. This was borne out last night.

The curly-headed pivotman potted four goals and helped out on a fifth as the Fishermen's Co-op handed Frank Warshaw-lead in the first period, Ron Bremner and George Benthon roared back to give winners a one-goal lead entering the third session.

Failure to clear the puck cost the yellow-sweaters the tying goal midway through, but Les Bremner was awarded what proved to be the winning marker although the puck never entered the net.

B.O.P.'S THIRD
In the opening clash, Mike Leachman's B.O.P. sextette emerged victorious over the Navy in a third-place battle on a pair of late goals to win, 4 to 2. Civil Service was forced to accept a 6 to 5 tie with Gladwell in the final after leading 5 to 1 going into the last period.

The Navy-Bops clash was a rugged affair with hard checks and intentional boarding and slashing the order of the evening. After Ivan Wood, last week's hero, gave the Tars a one-goal

RYDER CUP MATCHES MAY BE CANCELED

CHICAGO (UP)—The Professional Golfers' Association today faced prospects that its major international competition, the Ryder Cup matches, will not be played in 1951.

R. C. A. Roe, executive secretary of the British F.G.A., notified officials by cable yesterday that the British team could not come to the United States in August or September, 1951, the usual months for the meet. Instead, Roe said, they would like to appear in March, 1952.

Though no official would comment openly, it was obvious the action nettled the F.G.A. hierarchy, and one spokesman glumly pointed out that it was usual for the visitors to accede to the host's request for dates.

"We went there a year ago to play when they wanted to," he said.

Bidding Halts On Film Rights To Hemingway's Latest Novel

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Exclusively Yours:

Studio bidding on Ernest Hemingway's "Across the River and Into the Trees" has stopped. The reasons: Blistering reviews and Hemingway's insistence on leasing the novel instead of selling it outright.

Londoners are saying that Orson Welles was plumb dazed over the announcement that Jean Simmons will marry Stewart Granger. Orson has been carrying a torch for the British beauty ever since she spurned him.

Jane Russell no longer will be warbling that song satire on her career, "Look What They Did To Me." Studio orders . . . F. Sinatra is seeing medical specialists again about that ear ailment which made him a 4-F during the war. . . Olivia de Havilland, my New York spies report, showed up at a rehearsal for "Romeo and Juliet" wearing a shiner. No explanation . . . Arline Judge's seventh, the rumor mill spells it out, will be Dudley Murphy, a Californian.

Triple role for Ann Baxter in "I Hear Them Sing." She'll play a daughter, mother and a grand-mother.

TOGETHER AGAIN ON STAGE Jeannette MacDonald and Gene Raymond will co-star in a legit revival of "The Guardsman." The show, with Richard Aldrich producing, will get a pre-Broadway tryout in L.A. It's their first professional appearance together since "Smilin' Through" in 1941.

Fan letter received by Bud Abbott: "I've always been an admirer of yours and would like to have one of your autographed photos. If you are one of those movie stars who charge 25 cents for your photo, you can go jump in the lake."

Rod Cameron and a Connecticut socialite are a cross-country blaze. Pat O'Brien joins Spencer Tracy in "The People vs. O'Hara." . . . Bettie Davis goes back to R.K.O. for a new ending for "Story of a Divorce" then R.K.O. will enter the film in the Oscar derby. . . Barbara Payton is answering queries about marriage to Franchot Tone with: "My divorce won't be final for another 10 months. . ."

Harold Peary's radio search for the gal in America with the heartiest laugh is such a hit that it will become an annual event. Winners will be dubbed "Miss Mirthquake."

Howard Hawks Works Behind Closed Doors

By BOB THOMAS

Does this sound familiar to you? Hollywood is often making secret pictures. The unkind might add that some of them should be kept a secret.

The latest picture to be made under atomic-plant security is called "The Thing." What is "The Thing"? Ah, that's why the picture is a secret.

I was the first outsider permitted on the set. Having signed my loyalty oath, I was ushered in.

Residents Of Vancouver To Vote On 'Wide Open Sunday'

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council Tuesday approved plans for submitting a plebiscite on a "wide open Sunday" to voters in the Dec. 13 civic election.

A recommendation of the finance committee was approved by a vote of 5 to 3.

Electorals will be asked if they are in favor of all forms of commercialized public recreation and entertainment on the Sabbath.

They also will be asked to approve Sunday opening of dance halls, pool parlors, liquor clubs, card clubs and horse racing.

The plebiscite was opposed by some aldermen who wanted only the electors' approval for a restricted program of Sunday sports, such as hockey, baseball and football.

Burgess Bedtime Story

By THORTON W. BURGESS

Never say a thing is so
"I'll you know, and know you know."
—Old Mother Nature.

Honker the Goose had fed his flock from the nesting grounds in the Far North over great forests and many waters and countless farms and villages and even cities on their way to the Sunny South for the winter. Even for the elders of the flock, who had made the long journey many times, it was exciting.

They saw strange sights, and anything could happen and things often did when they stopped to eat and rest. For the young Geese in the flock, making their first journey out into the Great World, it was a great adventure, a marvelous never-ending adventure that kept them filled with wonder and excitement every waking moment.

—Each day brought something new, something strange, to wonder about and gabble about while they fed or rested on quiet waters. So at last they reached the strange water that stretched away and away to the edge of the world, that was so queer tasting that they could not drink it any more, better than the sounded just what he was—very much disappointed.

"That wasn't a fish," said Honker, who had heard the other:

"What?" cried the young Geese as if they had one voice—

"I said that wasn't a fish," replied Honker.

The young Geese looked at one another as if each was trying to see if all had heard the same might be. Now Honker was leading them far out over this strange water. Of course, it was the ocean and the water was salt.

STARTLING THING

As they flew low over the water something happened that was so unexpected, so startling, so unbelievable—that some of them missed a wing beat or two and nearly fell into the water.

Finback the Whale came down to the surface for fresh air. From his head what looked like a jet of water shot into the air. A couple of minutes later the flock had passed right over Finback, the eyes of the young Geese looking as if they might pop right out of their heads.

They couldn't look back. Of course not. Flying so fast with their long necks stretched straight out it was impossible for them to turn their heads to look back; but how they wished they could, or that Honker would turn back so that they could see that great fish.

Perhaps Honker knew what they were thinking for he did turn and set his wings to come down on the water. All the others did the same thing. Of course. A good follower always does just what a good leader does. That is why we have leaders, those who know best what to do and how and when to do it.

FINBACK GONE

The young Geese looked all about eagerly. Finback was nowhere to be seen. "That big fish

"Did you say that wasn't a fish?" asked one in a shrill voice. He sounded as if perhaps he thought his ears hadn't heard right.

Honker nodded. "K'honk! Is anything wrong with your ears?" he asked.

Before the young Goose could find his tongue to reply up to the surface came Finback right in front of them. It frightened the young Geese half to death. The water poured off his back and the top of his great head and he blew a jet of what they mistook for water high into the air. It came from the top of his nose and was really his breath. It was much as you have seen your own breath in cold weather.

"If that isn't a fish I've never seen one," said one young Goose to another in a low voice. There had been so frightfully by Finback's sudden appearance that they had scattered in a panic. Now at a safe distance they stared at him.

'HE'S A FISH'

"Of course he's a fish. Just look at his tail and fins. If he isn't a fish I've never seen one," the other replied, and added, "It's silly to say is isn't a fish."

Mrs. Honker had been near enough to overhear. "It's much more silly to make talk about things you know nothing about," said she severely. "That is Finback, and he isn't a fish."

Esquimalt Armistice Service Criticized

"A lot of people are criticizing the way the Remembrance Day service in Esquimalt was conducted," Councillor A. C. Wurtele reported at Monday night's meeting of Esquimalt Council.

He said he had heard from many different sources dissatisfaction with the way the service was handled. He said he was very disturbed over the reports and wanted certain questions answered by those in charge.

Councillor Wurtele was not present at the service himself, having been delegated to represent the municipality at the Victoria service at the Cenotaph.

Reeve A. I. Thomas requested Councillor Wurtele not to go further with his discussion of the Esquimalt service during the council meeting.

"There is a proper way to deal with this," he said. "This is not the place to bring the matter up."

Councillor Wurtele contended that council had a right to discuss the matter but willingly agreed to leave further discussion until council met in a closed committee session.

The Esquimalt Remembrance Day service this year was arranged by a committee of the Esquimalt branch, Canadian Legion.

No. Funds For Cracked Plaster

Esquimalt Council would not consider Monday night a request from Mrs. Ellen Scott, 476 Swinford Street, which asked the municipality pay for plaster damage to her home caused, she said, by blasting operations conducted by the municipal works department.

The blasting, Reeve A. I. Thomas declared, was done two and one-half years ago. If anyone had any damage done as a result, he said, he should have made application for compensation within 60 days.

"We are not responsible after this length of time," he informed the other councillors.

It must be wonderful to understand and appreciate music. People who do, enjoy a richer life. You sense it when you watch them at a concert, recital or musicale. Their rapt expressions tell of some inner sublimity. To them comes that inspiring serenity, other folk find as they stand in a garden gazing at the glory of a sunset.

We who have no such sensitivity for fine music can only envy them. We can note the gently nodding heads, the receptive faces that seem to spread through their bodies, the far-away look in their eyes. While the notes roll forth, they live on a different plane, are a race apart from things pedestrian.

Stott

WE KATHLINGS should recognize that, should allow the appreciative their appreciation and look on them with admiration. We should even try to copy them, and create an appetite for such refinements. But how should a guy go about it?

Back in school days, our generation took singing. Each week or two Mr. Pollard came around to the class and we finally learned how to yell out "John Peel" louder than old John holler "Halo." Then we did a job on "The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls" and got nicely twisted on "King Wenceslas" round about Christmas time. That, and a few variants, made up our formal musical education. Outdoors we used to give tongue to such charming little ditties as "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo' No Mo'" and a hymn prodies that don't bear repetition in print.

BUT THE CROWNING glory in a kid's musical career at school used to come when his voice broke and he made like a bullfrog until the teacher tossed him out of the choral group.

Vocal art and music, to the rugged footballer, street hockey ace or ball player of 12 or 13, were things he figured he could do best without. It wasn't until he started going to private dances that he realized the kid who'd been taking piano lessons had anything at all. By then, it was too late.

So a generation grew up with a fine scorn for music, only gradually and grudgingly admitting it might have charms. It was a pretty guarded admission at that. A fellow might say that Joe could "sure tickle the ivories," but that's as far as he'd go. If he mentioned the names Wagner, Beethoven, Bach or Grieg, it was by way of kidding. They formed an accusation, not a tribute.

BEFORE RADIO, the old stem-winding phonograph gave him some familiarity with popular music and even introduced him to the light classics. He found Liszt and Strauss tuneful, but if you asked him to name his favorites, they'd still be "The Dark Town Strutters' Ball" and the output of "Tin Pan Alley."

Maybe he even went in for highbrow jazz. That's about as occult as is the "long-hair" compositions. You can be quite a snob if you can rattle off the techniques of the New Orleans and Kansas City schools. But it still doesn't give you the status that the lover of classical music achieves. Go out of the world on the rising notes of a torrid trumpet, and you may be hep, but ordinary folk are going to look at you from under lowered eyebrows. High brow jazz still seems a bit self-conscious. The devotees of the classical, on the other hand, have a supreme obliviousness to what anyone may think.

IT'S GOING to be a lot easier for the younger generation. Why, in school, boys even take pride in their singing now. Norma Douglas did a good job on that at Victoria High School and the tradition is growing.

There's another principle that seems to be working out. As the youngsters of today are given their music, a definite effort is made to find tunes that appeal to them. Along with that, something a little more solid is slipped in. It's a gentle process. Bit by bit they develop appreciation. When they grow up they'll probably turn to the good stuff naturally.

For people like me, though, the outlook isn't so hopeful. We'll just have to get by on "Oklahoma," Strauss waltzes, simple ballads and the occasional classic that moves out beyond musical scholarship and has a native appeal. But it would be comforting for us if, when we went to a concert, somebody would play something we knew.

Cheerful Co-eds Think Weather Is Fine

"We're not cold," chorused these pretty misses caught by the Times cameraman while on their way to school this morning. "This is the kind of weather we like," they declared. "It makes us feel brisk. It gives us lots of pep."

Veterans Can Take Building Course

Veterans wishing to build their own homes will be given an opportunity to learn the proper way of going about it by enrolling for a V.L.A. course to be given in January.

G. L. Chatterton, regional supervisor of the Soldier Settlement and Veterans' Land Act, reveals 33 ex-servicemen have already applied for the course and others have made inquiries.

First course in home building was given veterans here last spring. It was considered most successful.

Anyone wishing to enroll for the second course should do so this week, if possible, Mr. Chatterton said.

LOW TEMPERATURE TO CONTINUE HERE

Weatherman Promises No Early Relief; Freezing Last Night

After dipping down to the freezing mark last night, the temperature in Victoria climbed slowly today but got no higher than 40.

Power Group Appeals For Tax Relief

Whether the city will be able to collect taxes on the partially constructed B.C. Power Commission building on Blanshard Street hinges on the interpretation Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane gives to the word "land" mentioned in the B.C. Power Act.

This was the basis of the commission's appeal against the decision of the Court of Revision, which confirmed the city's assessment of the new administration building. The city assessed the Power Commission building at approximately $6,000 and improvements at $150,000.

The commission's case was presented by H. W. Davey, K.C., who contended in Supreme Court Chambers today that the city had no right to tax any building erected on land owned by the B.C. Power Commission. "We are not quarrelling about the assessment arrived at by the city," he said, "but over the right the city has in taxing the commission's property."

GROCERIES STOLEN

Mrs. L. Alexander, Suite 9 of the Argyle Apartments, 424 Linden Avenue, has reported to police that a box of groceries were stolen from outside her door.

Some citizens liked it; claimed it put spring in their step. Others bemoaned the weather and argued that it meant the city was in for another hard winter.

"Worse than last year, you wait and see," one passer-by declared. "I'm glad I've got my fuel in."

The light flurry of snow and hail the city experienced Monday was measured at the Gonzales Observatory as being .7 of an inch. It began falling around 2.30 and finished up around 6.

The weather man promises no relief from the cold spell. He explains a mass of cold air from the Yukon is still pushing south and until such time as warmer Pacific air fills the overhead sky, the temperature will remain cold.

The forecast for Victoria calls for variable cloudiness overnight; cloudy skies Wednesday; continuing cold.

Firemen Help Man Trapped On Roof

An elderly Hillside Avenue man Monday afternoon was cleaning his chimney so there would be no trouble when extra fuel was heaped on fires to beat off the winter cold, when the winter weatherman trapped him. He was on the roof doing this when the snow came, to leave him stranded. It was too treacherous to move. Firemen were called to the rescue. They strung a rope over the shingled roof and lowered him to a ladder.

CLAXTON CHATS WITH JOHNSON IN HOSPITAL

Defence Minister Brooke Claxton took time out from his rigorous schedule Monday night to visit a friend in hospital.

Following a dinner at the Union Club, Mr. Claxton went to Jubilee Hospital and chatted for a few minutes with Premier Byron Johnson.

"I was glad to see he is coming along so well. Of course, he has a long way to go yet before he's right, but he seems to be doing just fine," the minister said today.

He termed Premier Johnson's traffic accident in Quebec on Sept. 29 "a nasty thing."

Board Hears Duncan Views On Milk Prices

E. C. Carr, chairman of B.C. Milk Board, conducted hearings in Duncan today to hear requests from dairymen that the price of milk should be increased.

At a public hearing in Victoria Monday, producers asked for a 2 1/2-cent per quart increase in the price of fluid milk.

Producers made no specific request, but point out that in September of this year they claimed losses of 1.4 cents per quart. If current wage demands were met, losses would rise to more than 2 cents per quart, they said.

A protest was made at the hearing by Mrs. Mary Kelly, representing Parent-Teachers' Association Council, who said that while she had sympathy for the producers and distributors, there were still families in Victoria that could not afford sufficient milk.

DELIVERY ROUTE DUPLICATION

She suggested that the board consider advertising, and duplication of delivery routes, toward reducing costs.

George A. Masters, administrator at Royal Jubilee Hospital, said that the hospital, which bottles 100 gallons of milk a day for its own use, should be able to buy at the school board price of 64 cents per gallon instead of the 67 cents it now pays.

Dr. Robert M. Clark, University of British Columbia economist, called to the stand by J. G. Gould, counsel for five Victoria distributors, reviewed increased costs since 1948, when the price of milk was raised.

He also said that a profit of 3 per cent on sales would be fair for distributors.

Claxton Backs 'Constructive' Mainguy Report

A section of the Mainguy Commission report on conditions in the Canadian navy which has come in for some criticism was defended here today by Defence Minister Brooke Claxton.

In a talk entitled "The Nelson Touch," given to cadets at the Canadian Services College at Royal Roads, the minister said that "it is surprising that when the Mainguy Commission issued its report, this constructive work was on several occasions criticized as if the commission had been critical of 'The Nelson Touch' or of Nelson himself."

"There was nothing in the report to justify that assertion. The report referred to a feeling on the part of some officers and men in the navy that there was too much an attitude that 'what was good enough for the life of Nelson was good enough for today,'" Mr. Claxton said.

"Why, Nelson had similar views himself. He was utterly ruthless in dealing with outmoded ideas, outmoded tactics and outmoded standards of conduct or conditions of living," he continued.

"The report itself never even mentioned 'The Nelson Touch' and it is utterly inconceivable that three men so steeped in the life of the sea and in the naval tradition as Admiral Mainguy, L. W. Brockington and Louis Audette should have had anything but admiration for the greatest sailor ever produced."

Keep Victoria 'Restful City' Padre Urges

Tourists will stay longer in Victoria if it does not become too "Americanized," Rev. William Hills told the Gyro Club and Chamber of Commerce Monday at a joint luncheon in the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Hills recently completed a three-week speaking tour through Illinois and Wisconsin.

"You hear people remark that Victoria is a place where they roll up the sidewalks at 9 each night," he said, "a place to which people come to die. When Americans ask about this, we should say 'Yes, it's right, come on up and have a good rest, and after your visit you'll return to your homes and businesses refreshed and rested.'"

He said Canadians must make a more determined effort in "selling" Canada to the United States, and that Victoria must not lose its old-world atmosphere.

"Americans have remarked that the city is not what it used to be," he said. "Let's not have Victoria become merely a postscript to Seattle."

Says Delay Blocked Sale Of Property

Complaint of delays was lodged against the city today by C. E. Clark, 1729 Carrick Street, who purchased two lots on Bay Street and later accepted an offer for their sale but was unable to obtain title.

He said he purchased the property originally on the understanding that about 10 feet would be marked off for Bay Street widening, but later learned 22 feet would be required. This, in addition to delays regarding obtaining title caused loss of sale, he wrote.

B.C. Federation Of Agriculture Makes Presentation To Cabinet

Only equitable means of taxation for education should be based on ability to pay, a delegation from the B.C. Federation of Agriculture today told the provincial cabinet.

The delegation, headed by Alex Mercer, Vancouver, president of the association, and Charles Walls, Vancouver, secretary-manager, presented a brief pleading for removal of the cost of education from land.

Inequalities existing under the present system of taxation were reviewed.

It was pointed out that mill rates have more than doubled in recent years and in many cases school taxes on farms have tripled since 1940.

POPULATION INFLUX

"Over and above this," said the delegation, "through a great influx of urban population and small holders, we are in most districts faced with the building of new high-cost schools."

The delegation stressed that farmers had a no criticism of the standard of education and that they were willing to pay a fair share of the cost. But paying for education by land tax throws too great a burden on the farmer.

Assessment of land and property created many injustices. In most districts there were industries operating from small acreages, many of which contained the owner's residence; that had an income far in excess of that of the adjacent farmer and who only paid attraction of the school tax paid by the farmer-neighbor.

Found Guilty In Assault Case

Tim Eli Cordick, who was found guilty of beating taxi driver John Dunn, was given an 18-month suspended sentence when he appeared in County Court today before Judge H. H. Shandley.

The judge said Dunn was "nearly beaten to death" by Cordick and Dennis O'Brien at the Lantern Inn. O'Brien was sentenced last week to four months in jail for the same offence.

The judge declared he was being lenient to Cordick because he did not take a major part in the assault.

Whole Force Alert For Clues Of Death - Dealing Hit, Run Car

By ROY THORSEN

Somewhere in Greater Victoria there is a car that killed a man. It may have been hidden, kept out of service in a garage or changed to lose its identity as "the car."

Ever since 80-year-old William Savidge, 3008 Douglas Street, was struck by the "mystery" car and killed last Friday evening, city police have been on one of the biggest hunts in the history of searches on the police records.

At the police station the case has become the No. 1 mystery. "Our efforts will continue until we have explored every possible angle to track down the car and its driver," Police Chief John Blackstock said today.

He would not reveal some of the investigations that will be conducted to ferret out the driver for fear it might aid him to keep under cover.

All members of the force have been ordered to be on the lookout for clues which may aid the search.

TO SIX DIFFERENT MAKES Traffic department officials have narrowed the hunt down to six different makes of cars ranging from 1929 to 1930 models, it was revealed today.

They believe the "mystery" sedan to be among the following: 1929-30 Pontiac, 1927-28 Studebaker, 1928 Erskine (Studebaker), 1929-30 Marquette, 1930 Oldsmobile or 1929 Peerless.

Traffic officers learned last night they have plenty of well-wishers among the motoring public in the search.

This was when police stopped hundreds of old-model cars by road blocks at strategic spots throughout the city.

They were looking for a broken headlight. Glass from one was left at the scene of the collision. Some more was found at the foot of Alder Street.

It is figured the car involved might also have been damaged in front.

"Keep plugging, fellows, we hope you find him," were among sentiments expressed by motorists stopped.

Police have a witness who followed the car to the foot of Alder Street.

CITIZENS ASKED TO HELP

Citizens are urged to provide police with any scraps of information which will help in the investigation.

Even although people might think what they have is trivial, traffic officials point out that even a scrap may be the connecting link needed to complete the chain of evidence collected.

They are particularly asked to watch for cars of the makes suspected which have been kept under wraps since Friday night.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

This boy of six years was lured to end his thumb-sucking by the convivance of the mother and the doctor. The mother feels that this was a good way to manage it.

She writes: "My boy was and is a much loved child and an only. He started thumb-cucking when his teeth began to bother him. We thought it soothed his irritated gums and we let him continue the habit. It has gone on for six years.

"I felt sick about this as I felt he would be teased about this at school. So I sought the aid of my doctor and this is what he did.

"At the time he had his booster shots for whooping cough the doctor looked at his thumb. 'Sonny,' he said, 'we are going to have to do something about this thumb, if it is ever to be a perfect one. I am going to bandage it and every morning your mother will wash it in oil, as we don't want water to touch it.'"

"My boy understood perfectly. We bought a rubber stall and kept it over the bandage. In a month the doctor looked at it again and said he must still be careful not to get saliva on it. This has worked for us and he is a much happier boy. No one has asked him why he has his thumb in his mouth nor has teased him about it."

I feel strongly that with so co-operative a child this could have been accomplished without resort to frightening him into the belief that saliva or water on his thumb would harm it. Even for this end I doubt the necessity of lying to the child.

At this age he would understand why you would want to help him overcome a baby habit, and with his consent the use of the thumbstall would have been a reminder to him each time he put the thumb to his mouth.

Then, when he had overcome the desire to do this, with your approval and encouragement, he himself would have felt the real satisfaction of victory. He would have found that with this little help he could remember to control the habit.

You can't reason thus with the younger child, but the habit grows weaker with age as the older child has more activities and interests and less time for this passive habit. A kindly desire to help him and any type of reminder would probably have worked as well.

Our leaflet No. 55, "Thumb-Sucking," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Readers Unsympathetic To Woman Who Believes Student Son Should Spend Portion Of Legacy Paying Off Mortgage

Dear Mary Haworth: Late in October you wrestled with the question of whether a boy, 21, in receipt of "a sizeable legacy" from a family friend, owes some portion of it to his parents, who "sacrificed" to send him to college, and who still have a $3,000 mortgage on their home, and younger children to educate.

His mother says it is quite some time since the lad fell heir to the money; and so far, not a word has he said about sharing any part of it with his family. She says the family practise has been "share and share alike," and she feels the boy should at least pay off the mortgage, as a way of saying "Thanks for everything." She asks who's being selfish—the boy or his parents. I would appreciate your views, also a poll from your readers.

In my opinion, there is an undercurrent of greed, jealousy and envy in the mother's letter. And just as you say, the boy's half of the story hasn't been told. And when you hear only a half-truth in a case like this, it is little better than a lie. One thing sure, the lad must be an outstanding good character in his family and community. Well-to-do persons usually don't leave their money to bums and spendthrifts. Another point seems obvious—if the deceased had intended Vernon's family to share in the gift, he would have left the parents a sum outright. F.V.

SLIDING SCALE OF GENEROSITY
Dear Mary Haworth: In regard to the chap who has inherited a sizeable amount of money, it must indeed be sizeable, inasmuch as his mother talks as if three thousand dollars would be only a fraction of it.

I feel sorry for the lad. In order to get his education, he probably had to skimp, scrimp, wear outgrown clothes and bypass youthful pleasures. Now for the first time he has money to spare; and he could let go, buy a fine suit, etc. But no; he holds his windfall in reserve—to buy a home when he marries, he says. No matter how much money he makes, he will always be so dollar-conscious that he will squeeze a nickel until the eagle screams.

You (and the reader) were asked to evaluate his behavior without knowing much of the story. I should like to know why the benefactor gave all the money to him, and none to his

WHY BE GRATEFUL FOR BEING BORN?

Dear Readers: In other letters on this subject, various critics raise the question, "Why do parents think their children owe them something for being born? Children don't ask to be born," they say—as if not asking absolved the children from any obligations of appreciation to their parents. I challenge that attitude. I hold it to be self evident that life is a priceless gift of limitless potentials; and human beings sense its divine essence instinctively; for look how they cling to life, against all sorts of fearful odds.

All thoughtful peoples, even the most primitive, offer reverence to The Creator of the universe; and surely it is logical, then, to feel some comparable sentiment towards good parents, for having begot one into the universe. M.H.

A name to endure
Quebec

Centuries ago an ancient village stood where the waters of the St. Lawrence narrow suddenly. The Algonquins called that place Kebec—"the narrowing of the waters." Thus, says tradition, did the Province receive its enduring name.

Distinguished and historic, Quebec today keeps pace with Canada's giant strides toward a great future. During the past decade alone a tremendous hydro-electric development has harnessed Quebec's water power to drive her industrial wheels. And from her vast timberlands come huge supplies of pulp and paper to feed the presses of the world.

Much of Canada's greatness stems from Quebec, this nation's oldest province. And in preparing for the future Quebec draws upon a rich cultural heritage from the past.

Victoria Girl Married In Columbus, O. New Orleans Honeymoon, Wash. Home

Of interest in Victoria, where the bride's mother lives and in Vancouver where she has many friends, is announcement of the marriage of Constance Sylvia Brown of New York City, daughter of Mrs. W. E. Brown, 2335 Oak Bay Avenue, Victoria, and the late Mr. William Ellis Brown, to Mr. Charles Francis McCormack, Columbus, O., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McCormack.

The wedding took place on Saturday, Nov. 11, at 11.30 a.m. in Christ the King Church in Columbus, with Father Leo R. Brehm officiating.

Mr. Kirk A. Keegan, New York City, gave the fair-haired bride in marriage. Tall and slim, she made an attractive picture in her model gown of rosy beige lace with very full ankle-length skirt over stiffened tulle. The bodice was styled with softly draped oval neckline. A brown velvet fitted hat with beaded leaves curling over one ear, brown velvet pumps, long gloves on tone with her gown and harmonizing flowers, completed the ensemble.

A sister, Mrs. A. J. Lobsinger of Edmonton, Alta., was the bride's only attendant. Mr. J. P. Buckley, Washington, D.C., acted as best man.

Following the wedding a small reception was held prior to the bride and groom leaving by car for New Orleans on their honeymoon. They will return to Columbus for a few weeks, going on to Washington, D.C., in December to make their future home.

Mrs. McCormack is a graduate in social service of University of British Columbia with affiliations with Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. She spent some time with the Family Welfare Society in this city and with western division, Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Vancouver, before going to New York for post graduate work in medical social service at New York University. For the past three years she has been doing medical social work at New York Hospital.

Mr. McCormack is a highway engineer with the Automotive Safety Foundation at Washington, D.C., presently supervising engineer on the Ohio Highway Study.

Ersul Stranaghan Bride

Tall baskets of chrysanthemums decorated Metropolitan United Church recently when Miss Ersul Stranaghan, daughter of Mrs. J. Morgan, North Road, Colquitz, and Frank "Bud" White, younger son of Mrs. G. White, 3474 Quadra Street, and the late Mr. H. A. White, were united in marriage by Dr. A. E. Whitehouse.

The bride wore a white satin gown fashioned with lace yoke dotted with seed pearls, lace lily point sleeves and skirt panels that fell in graceful folds to floor length. Her embroidered veil was attached to a beaded coronet, and her bouquet was red roses and gardenias.

She was given in marriage by her stepfather, J. Morgan. Maid of honor, Miss Doris Bushell, Ocean Falls, cousin of the bride, wore powder blue net over tulle. Miss Barbara Love, Miss Pat McCree, cousins of the groom, and Miss Beverly Johnson, as bridesmaids, wore similar gowns of yellow, pink and green embossed nylon net over crisp tulle. They each wore matching shoulder veils and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums, carnations and fern.

The groom chose Don Jones as his best man. Ushers were Wally White, brother of the groom; Vernon Stranaghan, brother of the bride, and David Routley.

The three-tiered wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom centred the table at the reception held at the Kings Road Hall where the newlyweds were assisted in receiving by Mrs. White and Mrs. Morgan.

The bride chose as her going away ensemble, a green gabardine suit, brown coat and cocoa brown accessories complemented with

New Savings Bond Record In Canada

By DAVE STOCK

The word last week from the ivory tower in Ottawa where Finance Minister Douglas Abbott hangs his working hat was that more Canadians than ever before signed up this year for Canada Savings Bonds. The news dispatch which carried these tidings went so far as to say "D.A." was happy about the way his Series Fives were going.

It went even further, in fact, by attempting to explain the minister's joy was due to his belief the increased bond sale was good for Joe Citizen as well as for the nation as a whole.

So it is. The budget man will have to do better than that if he's going to start an argument.

The government bond in this country is as solid as the adage which makes reference to the elevated outcropping at the western end of the Mediterranean upon which Britain has maintained a garrison since 1704.

A SURE THING

The get-rich-quick boys may like to play the open market; may like to chance winning a pile or losing what stakes they have, but to Henry Fubb, who has only a mole-hill pile, he wants a sure thing.

Government bonds fill the bill. Another sure thing is life insurance, especially the endowment kind. We're not trying to sell the stuff. We know too well the man who says, "Cold virus and insurance salesmen are continually out to get me. I try to avoid both."

The fact remains, however, that life insurance is another sure thing. And like the government savings bond it's not only good for the individual but for society.

That's why it's heartening to see that both government bond and life insurance sales are going along at the rate they are. With inflation swooping along as it is, such investments represent a kind of sturdy anchor cast to windward.

And the guy to thank is Henry Fubb, who, while earning more than he ever did but having to pay more to live than he ever did, recognizes in this period of so-called prosperity it is wise to look and plan for the future.

While on this general topic, however, we should consider the case of Wilbur Wilfitts.

Wilbur is the fellow who started buying war bonds after he got a job in a war factory in 1940. He earned what was considered good money in those days and didn't spend it all because there just weren't things to buy.

Wilbur saved with the idea of buying lots of luxuries after the war.

When the war did end, it was a little while before the so-called luxury goods came back. Wilbur, in the meantime, waited and bought more government bonds. Even when the first postwar luxury goods did hit the market, Wilbur didn't buy. He figured these goods were hurry-up products and reckoned if he waited a little longer, quality would improve.

PRICES SKYROCKET

Everyone knows what's happened since then. Quality of goods is now as good as it ever was and there's plenty of selection. But—and it's a big but—the price is now double, in some cases triple what it was four years ago, and there seems to be no sign of it coming down.

PRESIDENT and general manager Morley Aylesworth of Canada Trust Company and Huron and Erie Mortgage Corporation, spent the weekend in Victoria, and left the city today for the mainland.

While here he visited G. E. G. Whitaker, manager of the local office in company with J. A. Taylor, assistant general manager of Canada Trust Co., also from head office in London, Ont.

Mr. Aylesworth, Mr. Taylor and Mr. Whitaker drove to Nanaimo this morning, where the visitors left for Vancouver and eastern Canada.

Our boy Wilbur, therefore, is getting tired of waiting.

Wilbur, who not so long ago argued the future belonged to those who planned for it, now says the heck with the future.

"Look what I'm missing," he says. "I may as well spend my money now and get the things I've promised myself."

Wilbur has read the print on the back of his government bonds and he's already expertly managed to find out that the part is quite true which says "can be cashed at any bank at any time, at full face value, plus earned interest."

It's easy and that's what Wilbur is doing. It seems wrong but it's not his fault. Some blame the government; some blame business; others blame labor. It's maybe all of them and a lot of others besides.

Perhaps part of the blame should go on the fellow who writes the magazine ad which says no hope can be run efficiently without the super-de luxe combination automatic washer-vacuum-refrigerator. And how about the radio announcer who quotes the child psychiatrist as saying it's unfair to retard a child's development by denying him a television set.

It sounds silly doesn't it. Well, it is. But it's true. And it's a problem.

Prices Irregular When Profit Takers Move In

MONTREAL (CP)—Profit-taking took over a hesitant security list near the close today on the Montreal Stock Exchange and curb market. Trading was moderately active.

Moves in either direction were mostly minor fractions, as losses held a fair edge over gains. Many market leaders held unchanged.

A moderate list of papers displayed a mixed tone. St. Lawrence Corporation was up 1½ points at 27½ and the first preferred was up a point at 55, but International Paper fell 1 to 47½. Howard-Smith held unchanged.

International Paper featured a mixed utility section, with a ¼-point rise for a new high of 87. Senior oils moved narrowly lower, with a small list of banks and senior metals were mainly unchanged.

Canadian Celanese brightened a weaker industrial section with a 1½-point jump to a new high of 50.

Mines moved in a narrowly irregular path, while western oils followed the trend of the security market.

Golden Manitou traded 10 cents higher at $6.50, after touching a new high of $6.60. Sheritt-Cor. gained 15 cents at $2.65 and Steep Rock was up 20 cents at a new high of $6.50. East Sullivan fell 25 cents to $8.

Industrials Mixed
TORONTO (CP)—Prices were irregular on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Industrials were mixed following five days of advance. Gains were about equal to losses and no definite trend was established. Papers and refining oils tended lower and banks and manufacturing companies showed a majority of gains. The rest of the board were fairly mixed. Base metals opened strong but then eased. Golden Manitou was a feature issue, trading briskly for a good gain.

Golds were mixed with prices staying in a fairly narrow path. In the senior group Kerr Addison and Lamque advanced pennies and Dome and Lake Shore were lower.

Western oils showed small gains most of the session but towards the close turned irregular. Acme Gas traded the most briskly of the list with a penny advance.

Rally At Closing

NEW YORK (AP)—A timid rally followed a slow early decline in the stock market today. Steel shares, which with automobiles were under most pressure in the morning, were among the leaders in the recovery. Ralls also did better than average.

Gains ranged to about $1 a share. The advance was far from conclusive, however. Many issues stayed in the minus column or remained at Monday's final levels.

Trading picked up speed slightly at the market got back on an upward trend. Turnover reached a rate of about 1,700,000 shares for the full session.

High-priced Superior Oil of California jumped $25 to $370 a share at one time.

Canadian issues fell with Dome Mines and Hiram Walker each losing ¼, and International Nickel ¼. Distillers Seagrams added ¼. Canadian Pacific was unchanged.

On the curb, Giant Yellowknife fell ¼ and Lake Shore ¼ while Royalite Oil was unchanged.

German Bonds Lift

LONDON (Reuter)—With today the last of the trading period, business in the London Stock Exchange was mainly for the purpose of leveling positions.

Prices generally were without major alteration and the tone of most sections was one of quiet firmness.

There was, however, renewed interest in Japanese bonds, on further consideration of their re-listing on the New York Exchange, and prices made further upward progress. Germans were fractionally higher but other foreigners were without change.

Howe Says Results Fully Justify Wheat Policies

REGINA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Tuesday night the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, Mr. Howe said:

"There can be no sound argument that the agreement was not good for Canada."

The agreement was beneficial to western farmers, Mr. Howe said, because Marshall plan dollars, subsequently were allocated to the United Kingdom for the purchase of Canadian wheat when Britain's own dollar supply was almost exhausted.

"Without the agreement to back us up, we would not have had access to Marshall dollars," he said. "Without Marshall dollars, surpluses of wheat which were built up in the United States might easily have been built up in Canada instead."

Mr. Howe urged proper interpretation be placed on the contentious adjustment provision in the agreement—the "have regard" clause. He said the United Kingdom was satisfied obligations contained in the clause had been fulfilled, as far as negotiating wheat prices for 1948-49 and 1949-50 was concerned.

The final $2.00 per bushel prices was reached with that clause in mind, he added.

"The price in each case was settled with regard to differences in contract and non-contract prices in the first two years of the contract, but the negotiated price had to take account of probable price trends in the crop years ahead to which they were to apply."

"It was for this reason that it was agreed that the final consideration of the (have regard) clause would be made before July 31, 1950—the end of the contract period," he said.

W. C. MacNamara, Assistant Chief Commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board, and Commissioner W. Riddell led a discussion on Wheat Board marketing during the meeting.

Delegates today will hear discussions of grading methods by members of the Board of Grain Commissioners.

The meeting continues until Friday.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Hope For Eventual Cure Of Arthritis

There are many people—both patients and doctors—who take a far too hopeless attitude toward arthritis. It is true that there are some forms of joint disease which continue to get worse in spite of all efforts to conquer them, but many kinds of arthritis can be cured. Even those who suffer from the worst forms of the disease can usually be helped tremendously.

There is much to be learned about the rheumatic disease including arthritis. It is most encouraging, therefore, that from being almost an orphan in medicine 20 years ago, interest in these disorders has grown to an important place in medical thought.

For example, the American Rheumatism Association, which consisted of only a handful of physicians in 1930, has become an important medical organization.

Last year the American Rheumatism Association was host to physicians from all over the world at the International Congress of Rheumatic Diseases held in New York City. This past June the association met in San Francisco, and the members heard many important papers about arthritis.

As would be expected, this time most dealt with cortisone (compound E) and ACTH and their relation to the possible treatment of certain of the rheumatic disorders. These papers were most interesting but as has been pointed out in these columns before, there is still a lot of work to be done before these drugs can be used for all patients with arthritis or rheumatism.

Another sign of increased interest in conquering this group of diseases was the formation a little more than a year ago of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation in which a large number of public spirited citizens as well as physicians have taken an active interest.

The purposes of this organization are to obtain financial support to speed research on rheumatic disease, to offer fellowships to promising physicians who wish to specialize in them, and to make sure that all physicians are able to keep up with the latest advances in treatment, so that their patients may share in the benefits of new knowledge.

WORK WELL UNDER WAY

Already, as the result of the campaign for funds last year by this Foundation, important research investigations have been supported and several fellowships have been established.

It is most gratifying to be able to report this increased activity aimed at diseases which cause so much suffering, and so much loss of time from useful work. The history of the conquest of disease is full of examples in which greater endeavor has brought success. In the case of arthritis and its relatives this history should be repeated. Success should come, but it cannot be expected overnight.

The new cathedral of Liverpool when completed will be the largest Anglican church in the United Kingdom.

Allies Score Gains

By UNITED PRESS
The U.S. 7th Division pierced Communist defences about 25 miles from Red Manchuria today and headed north in the van of an Allied attack that pushed the Reds back all along the line. Troops of the 7th lunged across the Ugi and Yui-Ko rivers and pushed north against moderate resistance from surprised Communist forces. Some soldiers waded waist-deep through the icy rivers.

At the same time, South Korean troops stabbed inland from the northeast coast to attack the flank of Red forces opposing the 7th Division advance.

In another sector of the northeastern front, U.S. Marines advanced two miles to Hagar, two miles below the strategic Chosin Reservoir, which supplies most of Communist Korea's electric power.

At the western end of the 250-mile Allied front, the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division captured three hills south of the walled city of Yongphong after a 48-hour battle and moved forward to attack the city itself.

In the centre of the line, the South Korean 6th, 7th and 8th Divisions wiped out the last of a three-mile-deep Communist salient west of Tokchon and drove northeast and northwest in an effort to trap the retreating Reds.

ATLACK SUPERFORTS
Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighter planes swarmed out of Red Manchuria again during the day to inflict the worst damage yet on Allied planes. Two B-29's in a flight attacking the Yalu River bridges were damaged and several American airmen were wounded.

The MIG-15's fled back into Manchuria when U.S. F-80 jets appeared on the scene. No fighters on either side were shot down.

The B-29's made emergency landings at Korean fields instead of returning to their regular Japanese base. One skidded off the runway and wrecked four parked Marine fighter planes.

Despite the air attack and heavy anti-aircraft fire from the Manchurian bank of the Yalu River, 14 more superfortresses in the raiding flight dropped 140 tons of bombs on the bridges with "good to excellent" results.

Rules Car Death Accident

A coroner's jury which sat today to investigate the hit-and-run traffic death last Friday of William Savidge, 3008 Douglas Street, held no one responsible for the fatality. After deliberating just seven minutes, "the six-man panel brought in a verdict of accidental death.

Coroner Dr. E. C. Hart had said there were three possible verdicts: Accidental death, culpable neglect or manslaughter.

"If the driver of the car had stopped and stayed at the scene and had been here today to tell his story," the coroner observed, "you might consider it purely an accident. The fact that he ran away might make you a little suspicious that there was something more to it than that."

The jury apparently made its decision on the basis Mr. Savidge was nearly 80; he was wearing dark clothing, and the roadway in front of him home where he was hit was poorly illuminated.

LITTLE EVIDENCE
Actual evidence presented at the inquest was scant. No one was produced who saw the collision.

Harold Neff, 551 View Royal, who was working in a lumber yard near the accident scene, heard a crash.

"It was a metallic sound," the witness testified. "I thought at first a bicycle had been hit."

Mr. Neff said he saw a car careening down the street as he rushed to the side of the pedestrian. He said it was the only car on the road at the moment.

"It appeared to be practically out of control," he said. "It went careening toward the left hand side of the street going north."

Pilot Tried To Cut Over Alps, Say Airport Heads

ROME (Reuter)—Rome airport officials said today that the chartered Canadian plane carrying Holy Year pilgrims which crashed in the French Alps Tuesday had strayed off its course.

A statement issued by the airport said the plane's flight plan showed a course along the French south coast, then north. This course would have skirted the treacherous peaks of the Alps where the plane crashed.

The statement said: "The location of the crash clearly indicates that the pilot instead of following the route laid down for him to Marseille and Lyon, made directly for Lyon (across the Alps) perhaps with the intention of cutting short his journey."

NO SURVIVORS

GRENOBLE, France (CP)—An Alpine rescue party which climbed some 8,000 feet up Mont l'Oblu to the wrecked airliner "Canadian Pilgrim" found no survivors among the 58 persons aboard, it was announced officially tonight.

A terse radio message received from the party battling rain and sleet on the Alpine peak said: "No survivors."

The big plane, carrying French-Canadian Holy Year pilgrims home from Rome, crashed into the side of the French Alps mountain in a blinding snowstorm last night. It was the first disaster involving Holy Year pilgrims.

The Canadian plane, christened "The Canadian Pilgrim" when it was blessed in Montreal last spring, had safely made 30 chartered round trips between Rome and Montreal.

The plane's passengers, who included an Italian Roman Catholic priest on his way to take up an appointment in Ottawa and an American traveler, had joined 1,200 Canadians in an audience with the Pope only a few hours before yesterday's take-off from Ciampino airport in Rome.

The plane was on its way to Montreal from Rome via Paris when it struck. It was carrying 13 Roman Catholic priests, 12 of them Canadians. Nearly all of the 38 laymen among the passengers were from Quebec Province.

Ranking clergymen aboard the plane was Msgr. J. Alderville, Bureau, former dean of the faculty of canonical law at Laval University, Quebec.

Another prominent Quebec citizen listed was Ulysse Demers, professor of pharmacy at Laval. The pilot was listed as Orville Alfred Ohmstead, 28, of Montreal. His co-pilot was Robert James Henderson of Willowdale, Ont.

Also listed on a manifest for the "Canadian Pilgrim" was Romano Mochiutti, described as a member of the Apostolic delegation at Ottawa. The Apostolic delegate himself, Msgr. Ildebrando Antonutti, was reported safe in Rome.

Also on the ship was Arthur Pelletier, 50, president of the Montmorny Falls, Que. textile workers' syndicate affiliated with the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor.

WOMAN KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

Hazardous driving conditions caused by the first touch of winter weather, brought death to an elderly woman and injuries to two other persons Monday.

Seventy-nine-year-old Mrs. Mary Northam, 2644 Rose Street, well-known figure at the public market where she operated a home-cooking stand for many years, died in hospital after being struck by a car.

City police traffic officers said Mrs. Northam was crossing Hill-

Debts Plagued Doctor

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Police are turning up a trail of unpaid bills, growing debts and threatened eviction in investigating recent activities of Dr. Nancy Campbell, charged with kidnapping a little girl last week-end.

Investigations are delving into two other matters, police said: 1. Evidence that the prominent 45-year-old woman physician had been "doling out money to a number of individuals."

2. Discovery of $800 in travelers' cheques found in her car which are part of $1,000 reported stolen earlier this year from the Santa Fe office of Dr. Eric P. Hausman.

Dr. Campbell is in hospital awaiting arraignment in a week or two. A $25,000 bond was signed for her Tuesday.

The popular doctor, dressed like a man, was arrested in Santa Fe Saturday night as she picked up a box containing $20,000 ransom. In her car nearby was blonde Linda Stamm, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Stamm. Aside from being drugged she was apparently none the worse after spending Friday night in a floorless, windowless shack in 9-degree weather.

Tibet's Plea Ignored

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (AP)—Tibet's appeal for United Nations assistance to repel Chinese Communist invaders appears headed for the "file and forget" cabinet.

No U.N. member seems willing to shoulder the responsibility of sponsoring Tibet's plea in the Security Council. Since the remote Himalayan theocracy is not a member, it cannot present the plea directly.

The two governments most directly concerned—India and Nationalist China—both take the attitude that Tibet is a part of China and therefore the conflict is a civil war not subject to U.N. jurisdiction.

Although both countries are highly opposed to the Communist use of force against the 3,000,000 people in the mountain land, they feel that the legal niceties prevent interference.

The United States has not yet studied the communication from Tibet's finance minister, Tsepon Shakabpa, to Secretary-General Trygve Lie, but its representatives give the impression that it is much too engrossed in the Korean campaign to take on the main burden of a new war.

Anglican Primate Ill In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Most Rev. George F. Kingston, D.D., of Halifax, Anglican Primate of All Canada and Archbishop of Nova Scotia, was admitted to hospital here today.

He had come here to attend the seventh annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Churches, but was prevented by sudden illness from attending today's opening session. There was no indication of the nature of his illness.

Weather Forecast

Weather Forecast: Cloudy today; variable cloudiness over night and cloudy Wednesday. Continuing cold. Winds south-west 25 m.p.h. decreasing to southwest 15 m.p.h. overnight. Low tonight, 32; high Wednesday, 42.
